Raymond F. Allen Opens Law Office

Raymond F. Allen, formerly a partner in the law firm of Nixon, Hargrave, Devans & Dey, has opened his own law office at 31 Exchange St.

Allen, whose home is at 165 Trevor Court Rd., Brighton, is a native of Rochester, a graduate of Colgate University in 1917 and Albany Law School in 1921. For three years he was in the law division of the State Department of Education, and for five years he was an instructor and for eight years a full time professor at Albany Law School. He is a World War I Army veteran. In 1942 he went with the Nixon, Hargrave, Devans & Dey firm. He is a trustee of the Rochester Bar Assn., and is active in the banking section of the New York State Bar Assn. He was president last year of the Country Club of Rochester.

Bolt Record 65 Takes First in Pro-Amateur

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5 (AP)—Top-flight golfers were on hand for a pro-amateur celebrity round of play today but trying to pick the No. 1 threat to win the $30,000 Los Angeles Open when the tournament gets under way tomorrow was impossible.

Ben Hogan was the chief gallery attraction today, but the famous Ben is through with a steady diet of tournament golf and won't be in the field tomorrow.

(Sammy Urzetta, associate pro at the Country Club of Rochester and the 1950 National Amateur champion, will be in the field. Urzetta, who is taking his first crack at the tour, finished one stroke out of the money in the recent Montebello, Calif., Open. But this is his first big tournament since turning professional last spring.)

Hogan, playing here for the first time since 1950, played casually and hit the ball creditably. But his putting showed his rustiness and he shot 36-38-74. He 3-putted three greens on the back nine.

Tommy Bolt won individual honors with a course record 65 and $400. The score was a record since the course was revamped for the tournament.

Bolt and amateur Dick Meyers also won best ball laurels with a 69. Bolt collected $350 more for this. Leo Durocher of baseball fame, now of television, had a best ball 63 as Bolt's other amateur partner.

In individual performances, Bob Rosburg of San Francisco picked up, while Art Wall Jr. had a 69, Doug Ford a 70, U.S. Open champion Jack Fleck a 72, Mike Souchak 73, Cary Middlecoff 71, Julius Boros 71 and Gene Littler a fat 76.

This 30th edition of an affair that annually launches the pros on a new and arduous tournament campaign is being played at the Rancho Municipal golf course in West Los Angeles.

The course was changed around and toughened up considerably. It measures 7,043 yards and par is 36-35-71.

Jimmy Thomson holds the tournament record for one round and for 72 holes—a 63 and 22, set in 1928 on another municipal course in Griffith Park.

On a comparable course in nearby Inglewood last year, Littler put together rounds of 72-67-68-69—276 to win by two strokes over his nearest challenger, Ted Kroll. The latter was unable to compete this

Urzetta Likes Course In Crosby Play Practice

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Jan. 12—Sam Urzetta found the magnificently beautiful Cypress Point Golf Course to his liking today in a casual practice round intended to familiarize himself with the trick layout.

"It is a wonderful course, but very, very wet from the recent drenching rains," the Country Club of Rochester professional said after a practice tour in which, incidentally, he got himself a par 3 on the frightening 16th, an overwater challenge which has ruined many a star in Bing Crosby's annual charity tournament.

Urzetta used a driver, banging his ball smack on the green from 220 yards away, with a slight breeze in his face.

Urzetta didn't keep a card on his round today, sometimes playing along with a couple of balls to get the feel of things.

He starts tournament competition at 9 o'clock tomorrow over the nearby Monterey Peninsula Country Club course, which reportedly is even more sodden than Cypress Point.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Jan. 12 (AP)—A younger generation of pro golfers gets one more chance tomorrow at two of the game's biggest names, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson.

Both will tee off in Bing Crosby's charity golf tournament and both have served up scores indicating they are not here just to walk around the course. Hogan posted a 65 and Nelson a 68 in practice.

The crooner, who shot a 75 in practice, is teaming with Hogan and there is some chance he may be paying off his partner.

Other top pros on hand include last year's winner, Dr. Cary Middlecoff, Marvin (Bud) Ward, Doug Ford, Bo Winninger, Walter Burkemo, Lloyd Mangrum, Bob Rosburg, Tom Bolt, Ed Oliver, Bud Olscher, Gene Littler and Johnny Bulla.

Urzetta's 8 Rather Costly

Sammy Urzetta's horrendous 8 on the final hole at Pebble Beach cost him a place in the prize money at Bing Crosby's annual tournament over the weekend.

Urzetta, associate pro at the Country Club of Rochester, had opened with rounds of 70 and 69 and needed a par for a 74 and 213 total, which would have given him $300. An out-of-bounds tee shot on the final hole shoved him three shots over par.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Jan. 16 (P)—Final 54-hole scores and prize money in the Bing Crosby Pro-Amateur golf tournament, revised after the last players finished their rounds today:

INDIVIDUAL PROFESSIONALS
Dr. Cary Middlecoff, 202—$2,500; Mike Souchak, 207—$1,500; Bob Rosburg and Bill Ogden, 211—each $850; Dow Finsterwald and Doug Ford, 212—each $450; Bo Winiger, 213 — $300; Mike Fetchik, 214—$250; Dutch Harrison and Gardiner Dickinson, 215—each $200; Al Balding, Doug Higgins, Jimmy Demaret and Tommy Bolt, 216—each $150.

PRO-AMATEUR
Ralph Blomquist-George Galios, 188—$1,500; Don Whitt-Dr. Ed Lambert, 191—$1,000; John Barnum-Dennis O'Keefe, 192—$750; Marvin Ward-Bud Ward, 193—$500; Middlecoff-Ed Crowley, 194—$250; Art Bell-Ken Venturi, 194—$250; Lt. Don Addington-Frank Pace Jr. 194—$250.

*Souchak Hikes Lead to 3 Strokes;
Urzetta Fails to Qualify with 74*

Special to The Democrat and Chronicle

TIJUANA, Mex., Jan. 20 (AP)—

Sam Urzetta, associate pro at Country Club of Rochester (N. Y.), came off the bleak(chill and damp 18th green justifiably unhappy today.

He had shot a two-over-par 74, which wasn't too bad considering the rain, wind and cold, but coupled with his first round 76, young Sam had failed to qualify for the last two rounds of the $12,500 Caliente open.

"I just don't have the timing in my swing I should have," he said, rather impatiently. He let loose with a couple of mild cuss words about his game and promptly apoligized, "that may be the trouble. I'm a little too impatient, I guess."

Has he been satisfied with matters in general since he started the winter pro tour?

"No, I'm not satisfied. I should be playing better."

Had the layoff from golf after his operation for a kidney stone last September hurt him?

"No," he said, thoughtfully. "I don't think it's that. But maybe it is. All I know is that I don't have the timing I did have. You'd think I'd have got it back by now. One thing is for sure, I hope I get it back pretty soon. There again, I guess I'm not patient enough."

Urzetta shot a creditable 217 for the 54-hole Bing Crosby tournament and wasn't too unhappy about it. Yes, he said, he plans to continue on the tournament trail at either at Palm Springs, if he is invited, or the companion event next weekend as Brasley, Calif., then the Phoenix Open and on.

His card:

TIJUANA, Mex., Jan. 20 (P)—Big Mike Souchak, with another round of sub-par golf, stretched his lead to three strokes today as play reached the midway mark of the $12,500 Caliente Open.

The 28-year-old Souchak wasn't as hot as he was in the first round, when he toured the long Tijuana Country Club course in a seven-under-par 65, but his 71 today gave him a 36-hole score of 136.

Souchak, who held a two-stroke lead starting out this morning, was three blows in front of his nearest challengers tonight—Tommy Bolt, with a 69-70—139, and Ralph Blomquist with a 67-72—139.

Tied at 140 were Bo Winger, who had a 71, and Marty Furgol, with a 69.

The Tijuana course, playing about 7,000 yards today for its par 36-36-72, was anything but a pleasant one for players and gallery fans alike, because of rain and cold.

Only 13 players were able to break par in today's round as against 36 yesterday, and at the 36-hole point 25 were under par for the distance.

Putts that dropped consistently for Souchak yesterday from eight feet or so away wouldn't drop today, but even so, the popular pace setter was satisfied with his game.

"I feel all right now with my 71 and 136," he said, but added with a smile, "Of course, I wouldn't have minded a 69 or a 70."

Tied at 141 were Doug Higgins of Midland, Tex., with a 70, Ted Rhodes of Los Angeles, with 72, and Rod Funseth, low amateur from Spokane, Wash., with 74.

Gene Littler, Frank Stranahan, Mike Fetchik and Bill Nary had 142s, with Fetchik, from Mahopac, N. Y., shooting the best of the four for the day, a 70.

Seventy-seven players who had 36-hole scores of 149 and under, qualified for the last two rounds of the tournament, which winds up Sunday.

Annual Shoot Brings $2,200 To Polio Fund

By HOWARD KEMP

Old Man Polio was shot full of holes as area target busters surged to a new high in the annual Polio Shoot yesterday at Rochester-Brooks Gun Club. Chairman John Rodman reporting a net in excess of $2,200 as darkness halted shooting.

It was Kodak Park's shoot and the men from the Ridge went all out to get results. Chairman Rodman was shooting for $1,600, which would have beaten the previous high of more than $1,600 established last year.

Returns were incomplete last night, but Rodman said the $2,200 was in sight and that it might go a little higher.

Seven and a half tons of junk helped swell the fund. At a meeting of the committee, Charley Stappenbeck braced Johnny Rodman for payment for the 7½ tons of junk.

Record Turnout Noted

"I don't know how much I should collect but let's toss it into the shooters' polio fund," said Charley. Junk went up about $5 a ton that day so Stappenbeck endorsed a check for $212.33 and turned it back to Rodman.

A record number of trap and skeet shooters turned out for the event. Dr. Robert Bogie of Saranac Lake captured the skeet event and the Tony Perry Trophy while Carl Kluth took the John McCarthy Trophy for trapshooters.

Bogie wound up in a five-way tie in the skeet department, his score of 49 being equalled by Dr. Earl R. Wray, Norman Bekireh, Jimmy Hogan and Harold Constant. Bogie won the shootoff.

Kluth and Don Buerlein tied for trap honors with 47s and the Bonbright Medal holder won that shootoff.

State Meet Set June 1-3

The executive committee of the New York State Skeet Shooting Assn. met at Rochester-Brooks Gun Club yesterday and set June 1-3 as the dates for this year's state championships which will be shot at the East Henrietta Road layout.

In the absence of Myron Orbakker, president, Dr. Ward Williams presided at the session. Dr. Sidney Doolittle of Syracuse is secretary-treasurer.

Thirteen were represented at the session—Saranac Lake, Corning, Norwich, Conesus, Dansville, Onondaga and DeWitt clubs of Syracuse, Williamson and Four Point, Kodak, Rochester-Brooks, Outlet, and the Country Club of Rochester.

Judge to Talk on Juveniles Before Junior League

A new approach to juvenile problems will be the subject at a dinner of the Junior League of Rochester at the Country Club of Rochester tonight. Husbands will be guests.

Speaker will be Judge Thomas J. Meagher, whose topic will be "Legislating for Youth." It will be based on a survey completed this summer by a commission to study juvenile delinquency. The judge served as a member of the group. Bills are now before the New York State Legislature based on this study.

Mrs. Robert Reichart, chairman of the league's legislative committee, arranged this meeting.

REMINISCENCES of the childhood of a daughter of a missionary to China will follow a review of the book "Papa Was a Preacher" by Alyene Porter. The reviewer will be Mrs. W. Herbert Grant, wife of the minister of education at the Lake Avenue Baptist Church. She is the daughter of William Cossam who was a missionary in China for many years.

Her talk will be given to the Women's Club of Alfred University at 8 o'clock tonight in the home of Mrs. John Eckhardt in Harvard Street. Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor and Mrs. Willis Saunders will assist the hostess.

Research Needed Into Delinquency, Says State Aide

State Youth Commission aide Thomas J. Meagher contended last night that the sphere of juvenile crime is woefully lacking in research.

Meagher told the Junior League of Rochester that "there has not been any research from a preventive standpoint" on the problems of delinquency. He added: "It is certainly something that is needed, and needed greatly."

The speaker, a Rochester attorney, was judge of the Monroe County Children's Court from 1950 to 1955. He is now a part-time special assistant to the chairman of the State Youth Commission.

At the League's dinner in the Country Club of Rochester, Meagher cited several segments of delinquency in which research is lacking. He said, for instance, that the percentage of delinquents who become adult criminals is not known. "There is no statistical study of that sort of thing," he argued, "nor is there a study of some of the causes of it."

Meagher did not say how the research projects he proposed could be linked with the program of the Youth Commission. The first job, he said, is to get the commission set up as a permanent state unit. It has been a "temporary" agency since 1945.

Before Meagher spoke, the Junior League voted to donate $500 to the Albert D. Kaiser Memorial Fund, set up to honor the late city health officer. The sum will be applied toward the $300,000 that is being raised to establish an Albert D. Kaiser professorship in public health and preventive medicine at the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry.

Urzetta to Play on Coast

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Jan. 25 (AP)—Professional golf's leading players got in their final practice licks today before teeing off tomorrow in the first round of the $15,000 Thunderbird invitational tournament. (Sammy Urzetta, associate pro at the Country Club of Rochester, will compete in the Thunderbird test. It will be his fifth start on the Winter Tour. Urzetta has played in the Montebello, Los Angeles, Bing Crosby and Caliente events.)

GOLF, as it is in most colleges, was just a minor sport but Urzetta gave it major sport qualifications. In addition to winning the New York State Amateur championship, he bolstered his claim to fame by taking the Monroe Country Club invitation at Rochester, the Rochester Country Club invitation, the Veterans' Open, and several other titles in one season of play.

Today he is club professional at the Rochester Country Club and he still manages to get in the money when he hits the pro tour.

These, and many others, most of them coaching scholastic and collegiate teams around the country, were teammates with Ed Krause at St. Bonaventure.

And he was the clutch player. It's easy to understand now why he's the hottest thing in the Lanco League.

And why he's coaching basketball, college-style, at Lampeter-Strasburg, sticking to man-to-man defense, regardless of cost.

Age of Conformity Sapping Youth's Spirit, Says Sarah Lawrence President

AMERICANS are giving up their ability to think for themselves, and conformity rather than rebellion is becoming the hallmark of youth, Dr. Harold Taylor, president of Sarah Lawrence College, said last night.

Speaking before alumnae, parents of students and friends of the college at the Country Club of Rochester, Dr. Taylor said he is finding in intellectual circles a tendency to think in terms of mass media and book club selections rather than in terms of individual values.

He decried the "uniformity of aesthetic values and of intellectual approval" which he said are its results and which doom any presentation not approved by all the critics.

Among youth, he said, he finds a tendency to accept the norm of group behavior rather than a desire to develop as an individual. "People are accepting life as it comes to them; the young people are not rebelling and questioning it," he added. "There is too much respect for what exists, too little concern for the individual."

Deploring a movement to over-promote everything ("It takes 15 famous opera singers one after the other to convince us that great music is great"), Dr. Taylor said Americans in a "hopped-up civilization have succumbed to the aesthetics of thrill." He warned, "It is an attitude of superlatives which will destroy us."

College should provide for its students "a moment of suspension in which they can look around and learn what life should be without the obligations and necessities of life as it is," he told the group. It is the task of education to teach what is important, what really matters, to the individual, he said.

Dr. Marc Slonim, author and member of the Sarah Lawrence faculty, spoke on the role of the teacher at the college. It is important for the teacher to give his students the whole of his experience; he cannot split his life into a private part and an academic part if he is to be successful, he asserted.

Foremost Weaver to Lecture

MRS. Lloyd P. Young, one of New England's foremost designing weavers and a widely-known lecturer on weaving, will address the Weavers' Guild of Rochester tomorrow.

The Guild conference will run from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., with luncheon at 12:30, at Memorial Art Gallery.

The wife of Dr. Lloyd P. Young, president of Keene State Teachers College, Keene, N.H., the speaker is on the New Hampshire State Council of the League of Arts and Crafts, and is a member of the Boston Society of Arts and Crafts, America House, New York City, and the Craft Center of Worcester, Mass.

Mrs. Young will be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. David Bellamy of Barrington Street. A dinner will be given in her honor tomorrow evening at the Country Club of Rochester.

Guild members and others interested in weaving may make reservations for the session with Mrs. Ruth Munchow, program chairman.

BOB MADURO

TOURIST Samy Urzetta of the Country Club of Rochester should be interested in the golf pros' dream Tournament of Champions coming up in April at Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn course, Las Vegas. Not only is first place worth $10,000, with $5,000 for second prize, but each pro invited is guaranteed $1,000 merely for showing up. All that and a week's plush expenses, too. Only major tournament winners of this season are eligible, however. Just think, Sam, one win would put you in the gravy. . . . March issue of Sport magazine carries an interesting story on the Royals' Maurice Stokes. It's called "Royal Rookie," written by Irv Goodman, the publication's managing editor. . . . Latest tongue-in-cheek bulletin from rattle promoter Pedro Martinez: "You don't know how important it is to have major-league wrestling in Rochester. If fans don't do better for me I move wrestling to another city or sell to Washington, D.C. Maybe I could get $150,000 for franchise."

—Varden
Miss Marcia Christ

AT a luncheon in her home yesterday, Mrs. George Mathew Christ of Hurstbourne Road announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marcia Anne Christ, to William Richard Heffron, son of William Stewart Heffron of Rowley Street, and Mrs. Ruth Leonard of Naples.

The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. Christ who was golf pro for over 25 years at the Country Club of Rochester.

Mr. Heffron served two years with the Air Force in Alaska and for one year with the Army in Korea.

A fall wedding is planned.

RDGA Meets Tonight To Arrange Schedule

ANNUAL spring meeting of the Rochester District Golf Assn. is scheduled for tonight at Monroe Golf Club starting at 8 o'clock.

The local golf schedule will be drawn up at the meeting. All club representatives are asked to attend.

The 1956 RDGA Championship will be played at the Country Club of Rochester, with Bill Cory the defending titlist.

Rain Postpones Florida Golf; Ted Kroll Leads in Earnings

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 11 (P)—A cloudburst today forced postponement of the final round of the $12,500 Pensacola Open golf tournament until tomorrow. Ray O'Brien, PGA director, and officials of the sponsoring Pensacola Sports Assn. decided at a noon conference to put off play until tomorrow. It was the first time on the current pro winter tournament circuit that the final round was delayed.

(Sam Urzetta, associate pro at the Country Club of Rochester, currently is tied for 25th place in the tournament. Sam started badly with a 78, but rallied brilliantly with successive 69s.)

Don Fairfield, young Casey, Ill., pro, was the 54-hole leader with 72-69-65—206. Tied for second were Paul Harney, Bolton, Mass., 76-77-65—208; and Dick Mayer, St. Petersburg, Fla., 71-70-67—208.

Ted Kroll, winner of the Tucson and Houston Opens within three weeks of each other, is golf's leading money winner with $8,380 after the first 10 weeks of the winter tour, the Professional Golfers' Association of America announced today.

Gene Littler has moved up from sixth, to take the second spot with $7,568.75; Lloyd Mangrum, previously the money leader, is now third with $6,709; Jerry Barber has come up from fifth to rank fourth with $4,982.50; while Tommy Bolt has dropped from third to complete the first five with $4,637.50 in the money sock.

Campaign Leader Renamed

Thomas H. Gosnell, controller of the Lawyers Cooperative Publishing Co., again will head the individual subscriber division in the Community Chest-Red Cross campaign.

Gosnell, who led the division in last year's drive, was re-appointed yesterday by John W. Remington, Chest president and general chairman* of the campaign. The drive is set for May 3-14.

A member of the board of directors of Colgate Rochester Divinity School, Gosnell resides at 774 Lake Rd., Webster. He also is a director of the Country Club of Rochester, and a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Local Events Scheduled by Links Women

Two of the four events on the 1956 Western New York Women's Golf Assn. tournament scheduled are slated for Rochester clubs, it was announced yesterday.

Brook-Lea Country Club will be the site of a one-day medal tournament June 19, while Ridgmont will have a two-day best-ball Aug. 7-8.

Other events are the championship at Wanakah Country Club July 16-20 and a one-day medal at Niagara Falls Country Club Aug. 28.

Mrs. Robert Seiffert Jr. of the Park Club, Buffalo, is the first vice president, but will handle the president's duties this season because of the illness of Mrs. Robert Morris of the Country Club of Rochester, the elected prexy.

Other officers of the group are: Mrs. Harlow Webber of Brook-Lea, second vice president; Mrs. George Dobie of Locust Hill, secretary; Mrs. Leo Ward of the Park Club, assistant secretary; Mrs. Maurice Forman of Irondequoit, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph Ryan of Stafford, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Arnold Johnson of Oak Hill, tournament chairman; Mrs. Thorne Reineman of Country Club of Buffalo, assistant tournament chairman; Mrs. Henry Hayes of Irondequoit, handicaps; Mrs. Edward Douglas of Oak Hill, prizes; Mrs. George Trainor of the CCR, rules; Mrs. Walter Lyons of Silver Lake, membership; Mrs. Henry Hamlin of the CCR, by-laws.

Members of the Western New York group will meet Tuesday, April 10, at Locust Hill Country Club starting at 12:30 p.m. for the annual spring luncheon meeting.

Country Clubs Plan Menus for Easter

SO that mother will not have to doff her Easter finery to prepare dinner after parading to church Sunday morning many Rochester families are planning to have their Easter dinners at their country clubs.

Serving will begin at 12:30 and continue until 4 at the Country Club of Rochester. An Easter egg hunt will be conducted for children of members at 11:30 Saturday morning.

Oak Hill Country Club will feature roast beef and ham on the menu of its buffet dinner which will be served at 12, 2, 4 and 6.

Members of Monroe Golf Club may choose to eat at 1, 3 or 5 o'clock from a menu listing ham, spring broiler and roast beef and top off their meal with fresh strawberry shortcake.

At 11 a.m. Saturday an Easter egg hunt will be held at Brook-Lea Country Club, out-of-doors if the weather permits. On Sunday full course family dinners will be served from 2 to 7:30 with roast prime ribs of beef topping the menu.

Locust Hill Country Club members will enjoy Easter Sunday dinner from 2 to 6. The menu here features ham, broilers, roast lamb and roast beef.

Movies will follow an Easter egg hunt at 3 p.m. Sunday for children of members of Ridgmont Country Club. Family dinners will be served from 1 to 7 p.m.

Slowe-Fuller Nuptial Held at Church

MISS Mac Elaine Fuller,

2 Tour Stars Added to Field In Masters Golf

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 2 (AP) — Two of the brash young men who have been contributing to the downfall of golf's old guard were added to the field for the 20th Masters Tournament today, but they didn't alter the belief that the veterans will be out in front again when this test of golfing brains and ability ends next Sunday.

Cary Middlecoff, Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson are the players whose names are written first in the register at the Augusta National Golf Club, and you could do worse than try to pick the winners on that basis.

(Sam Urzetta, associate pro at Country Club of Rochester, will compete in the Masters. He finished in a tie for 22nd place in last week's Azalea Open to earn $92).

The latest additions to the select field are Dow Finsterwald, 29-year-old son of a former Ohio University football coach, and Lionel Hebert, 28, a swarthy swinger from Lafayette, La. They earned their invitations by out-performing all the other ineligible players on the winter circuit.

Not Expected To Lead

But these two, in spite of the consistency of their winter performances, hardly are expected to be among the leaders in this first major test of the 1956 golf season. Augusta National is a course that doesn't yield easily to inexperienced players.

Finsterwald, only touring pro who has played in every tournament this winter and never out of the money, has played in the Masters only once, in 1951 as an alternate on the Walker Cup team. Hebert, younger member of the only brother team in the tournament, will be making his first start. His brother Junius—known as Jay on the golf circuit—qualified by finishing tied for 15th place last year.

Finsterwald, second in the Tucson and Miami Beach Opens this year, and Hebert, who lost to Mike Fetchik in a playoff for the St. Petersburg Open title, were invited yesterday after Mike Souchak marked the end of the winter tour by winning the Azalea Open at Wilmington, N.C. They were the top men in the Ryder Cup point scoring so far this year.

Middlecoff, who has turned his stop-and-go system of playing into victories in the Bing Crosby Tournament and the Phoenix Open, was on hand to tune up Cary, at the age of 35, feels he can't do his best playing every week. This is one tournament he really wants to win.

No Successive Winners

No golfer ever has won the Masters two years in succession, but Middlecoff is a popular choice to break that jinx. He shot a 72-hole total of 279 last year, including a near-record 65 on the second round, and spread-eagled the field by seven strokes.

Hogan, twice winner and twice runner-up in the past five years, also is dead earnest about this event in spite of the partial retirement he announced last year after losing to Jack Fleck in the National Open playoff. The Texas bantam, now displaying a slight paunch in keeping with his status as a manufacturer of golf clubs, has been practicing intensively in Florida and was one of the first players to check in here.

Snead Won Three

Snead, one of the two three-time Masters winners—the other is Jimmy Demaret—and Nelson, a two-time winner, both make this one of the regular stops among their infrequent appearances on the golf tour. They both do well on the sprawling, flower-garlanded Augusta National course.

Masters Golf Sets Opening For Tomorrow

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3 (AP)—The greenskeepers trimmed a lot of grass off Augusta National's putting greens today, and they'll probably do it at least once more before the 26th Masters Tournament begins Thursday. But even then the huge carpets probably won't be in that stage of slick hardness that has driven a lot of golfers to despair in past years.

With this one exception, the vast 6,800-yard Augusta National layout is in a state of tip-top perfection for the tournament. The comparatively easy putting likely will be offset by the soft thickness of the fairway grass that cuts down the roll of the ball.

The greens were mowed to three-sixteenths of an inch this morning, but the rye grass sowed over the Bermuda base to give color to the course is unusually thick and heavy.

"They're Perfect"

"They're perfect the way they are," commented former amateur champion Gene Littler as he finished an early practice round. "I'd like to have them this way all through the tournament, but they'll probably be faster. They always are."

(Sammy Urzetta, associate pro at Country Club of Rochester, is in the field. Urzetta, who is making the winter tour with the pros this year, automatically is invited to the Masters because of winning the National Amateur in 1950.)

There's a sort of sameness about the Masters from year to year and one unchanging factor is that the championship generally is decided by putting.

Most times the putting surfaces are glassy smooth so that only a player with the finest touch can master them. In their present state, they're a little easier to handle and tournament officials don't believe they'll be really fast unless there's a lot of heat and wind to dry them.

Tourney Wide Open

All this contributes to making the 20th Masters one of the widest open tournaments ever held here. About 85 picked golfers, a record number, are expected to start Thursday.

Among them are Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret, the men who have won most frequently in past years, and defending champion Cary Middlecoff. But neither Snead nor Hogan has played much competitive golf during the winter and the experts hesitate to list them as favorites. Middlecoff is bucking the "jinx" that says no Masters winner ever repeats the next year.

Then there is Lloyd Mangrum, who has finished second twice and invariably is high on the list; Jackie Burke, another consistent player who never has won at Augusta; "world" champion Julius Boros; Tommy Bolt; PGA champion Doug Ford and Ted Kroll, a two-tournament winner on the winter circuit.

Look For Newcomer

Some observers, among them PGA Tournament Supervisor Ray O'Brien, feel it's about time for a newcomer to break through in the Masters. The field includes big Mike Souchak and Bob Rosburg, who tied for fourth last year; the steady-shooting Hebert brothers, Jay and Lionel; Dow Finsterwald, who has been the most consistent touring player this winter; Don Fairfield, a 25-year-old comer who has developed rapidly in the past year; and Jack Fleck, the current Open champion who is making his first start in the Masters.

The foreign list is composed of England's veteran Henry Cotton, Argentina's dashing Roberto De Vicenzo and three Canadians, Stan Leonard, Canadian PGA champion Al Balding and amateur Moe Norman.

The early practice rounds have produced some rather dazzling scores with several rounds in the upper 60's. Snead played 27 holes the other day, shooting each nine well under its 36 par and today Middlecoff fired birdies on four straight holes on the front nine. But there was a drying breeze, too, and if the greens get a bit harder, there won't be many more scores like those.

Monroe Women Take Inter-Club Bowling Tourney

Monroe Golf Club won the sixth annual Women's Inter-Club Bowling Tournament at the Rochester Bowling Center yesterday.

The Monroe team registered a handicap total of 2,398 to lead the field of eight teams.

Finishing second was Ridgemoor with 2,359, followed by Oak Hill with 2,335, Locust Hill with 2,325, the Genesee Valley Club with 2,325, defending champion Brook-Lea with 2,277, Irondequoit with 2,268 and the Country Club of Rochester with 2,259.

Members of the Monroe team were Mrs. Harry Platt, Mrs. George Patterson, Mrs. David Archibald, Mrs. Gordon Foster and Mrs. Philip Clapp Jr.. Mrs. Clapp had the day's high three-game total with 496.

The high single game was 200 rolled by Shirley Lippman of Irondequoit.

Medical Auxiliary to Hold Annual Meeting Friday

THE annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Medical Society of the County of Monroe will be held Friday at the Country Club of Rochester. Luncheon will be served at 12:30, followed by a business meeting.

Members of the board will present their annual reports and officers for the coming year will be elected. Guest speaker, Mrs. Roger Baldwin of Syracuse, will be introduced by Mrs. Jean A. Chaintreuil Jr., the president-elect.

Mrs. Baldwin, who received several prizes for her exhibits in the recent international Flower Show in New York City, will show color slides and speak on "Fundamentals of Flower Arrangements."

Arrangements are being made by Mrs. Leon Stetson and her committee, Mrs. Harry Hanson, Mrs. J. Merrel Parker and Mrs. Theodore Steinhausen.

MRS. ROBERT TITUS of the Rochester Maternal and Adoption Agency will address the Cornell Women's Club of Rochester at 8 p.m. tomorrow. Mrs. Francis M. Shull will report on the group's recent theater party, whose proceeds go to the club scholarship fund.

Mrs. C. E. Elmendorf of Oakridge Drive is hostess for the evening assisted by Miss Mary Casey and Mrs. A. C. Wadsworth.

Morreale Scores Par 70 Round To Take District Title Medal

By BRUCE KOCH

Jimmy Morreale, chunky, 39-year-old Midvale player, wielded a deadly wedge yesterday and won the medal in the 26th annual Rochester District Golf Assn. championship at Country Club of Rochester.

Morreale had one birdie, one bogey and 16 pars for a round of 70. His nine-hole counts of 35-35 matched CCR's par.

Morreale and 30 other golfers shooting 79 or better will join defending champion Bill Cory in match play beginning this morning and lasting through Sunday, when the 1956 champ will be crowned.

As usual, no player ripped the CCR layout apart. Morreale could have done it had his putter been hotter. He never holed one over 4 feet long. Jimmy used his wedge to advantage, time and again plunking it within a few feet of the cup. His lone bird came on a 2½-foot stroke at the third hole, while he bogeyed the seventh, usually considered one of the CCR's "pickup" holes.

Following Morreale in the scoring column was the perennial CCR club champion, Dr. George Trainor. The tall medic slipped over par on each of the first two holes, but that was it. He played even par the rest of the way for a 72. Deadlocked at 73 were Bob May, CCR, and Johnny Quinzi, the bowler-golfer who now registers out of Genesee.

Safely in the title flight is Bill Chapin, 3-time champion from Oak Hill, with 74. Clustered with Chapin were Mike Frontuto, another Midvale ace, and Bill Pulfifer and Bruce Koch, both of Oak Hill.

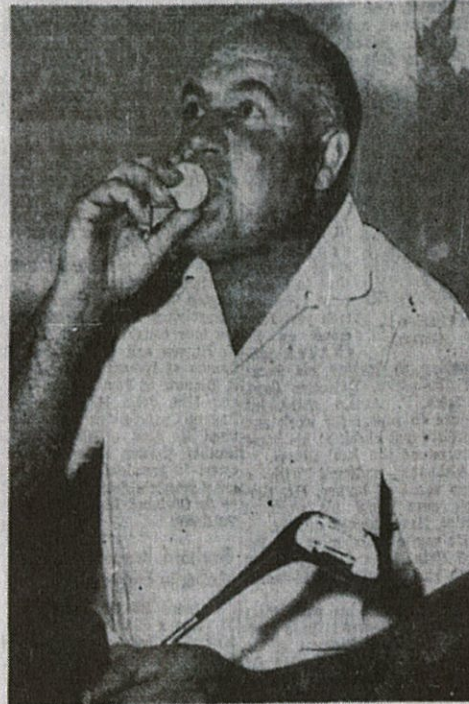

Another former champ, Bert Wing (1954) of Ridgemont, shot 75, as did Chis Kling, the young Oak Hiller.

Gusty winds were charged for fairly high scores. Rain, which threatened through the late stages of play, held off until only one group remained on the course. This, however, is a story in itself. Jack Thornton, one of the pre-tourney choices, was hitting his second shot on the 18th hole when the downpour hit.

As it was, Thornton or Eddie Church of Canandaigua, playing in the same group, had to make a birdie for 79 and create a playoff for the last title flight berth. Four 79 shooters anxiously awaited as Thornton and Church both plopped their second shots within range on the home green.

The rain came so hard, however, that Thornton and Church had to wait almost an hour before they could return to the rain-drenched 18th carpet and try their putts. Church missed his 15-footer first, then Thornton failed from approximately 10 feet. They were permitted to putt from a dry spot on the green.

Cliff Goodrich, who won this tournament in 1945 and again in 1951, will test Morreale this morning. Cliff posted a 77 yesterday. Cory draws Jerry Liebel, husky Oak Hill hitter, who also to win over his home layout, had 77 yesterday. Trainor, draws the portly policeman. Jack picked by most close observers Hamill, as his first-round foe.

Bank Chairman Feted at Dinner

Trustees of the Monroe County Savings Bank last night honored George D. Whedon, chairman of the board, at dinner at the Country Club of Rochester.

Whedon, former president of Monroe, was named board chairman and Adrian L. Spencer was elected president last Jan. 1. With the bank for 34 years, 20 of them as president, Whedon was presented a testimonial album and a silver tray bearing the engraved signatures of the trustees. He is a trustee of Hobart College and of the Episcopal Diocese of Rochester.

In the Pink...

With Paul Pinckney
Democrat and Chronicle Sports Editor

SAM URZETTA has many friends. He is an appealing young man, just 30 years old, never domineering, frank and easy in his conversation. But he's a sports hero.

Is that bad? Yes, sometimes, because sports heroes are highly expendable. Sam realizes that now.

Most people have forgotten that he was quite a basketball player in his college days, at St. Bonaventure University. He once considered becoming one of those basketeers who plays for the filthy lucre. He won the National Amateur golf title in 1950. He was second low amateur in the '51 National Open. He twice was a member of the U. S. Walker Cup team, 1951, 1953, and in '52 he was named to the American Cup team.

SAM URZETTA

Sam has a large collection of links and court trophies. All in all, he has done very well.

Last December, when he joined the touring golf pros for the first time, even some of his closest friends winced. They spoke out in real sympathy.

Other armchair strategists, in a more outspoken fashion, just couldn't figure how the East Rochesterian could match shots with the calloused upper-bracket men. And they jumped at the chance to second-guess further when his fair-to-middlin' early scores were reported. "Sam's had it," they said.

They held the same opinion when his game improved. They talked of how the duffers would have little faith in him when he returned home to resume his duties as Country Club of Rochester associate pro. Words of encouragement were few and far between.

All this adds up to the fact that Uurzetta had only slim support from his hometowners.

THIS vacationing newsman, heading north behind the snow and sleet-toothed storms which missed the Florida baseball camps, paid a visit to the recent Masters Golf Tournament in Augusta, Ga. It was a worthwhile trip, for there it was learned that Sam still is quite a golfer.

And it was learned long before Urzetta posted his 298 total, only nine strokes behind Jack Burke Jr.'s winning 289.

Sam's wife and 2½-year-old daughter, who accompanied him on the long tour, were, naturally, very happy. So, too, were other visiting Rochesterians: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lotz, Jack Gates, last year's District Golf Assn. president; Bill Baker of CCR and Oak Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson of Ridgemoor; Del Jacobs, RDGA tournament handicap chairman; Mal Wolcott of CCR; Marty Wahl, Oak Hill Finance Committee chairman, and National Open advisor Ed Carter.

But it was in the Augusta National Club locker-room, where players relax and tongues are loose, that you got more than a faint idea that Sam is a welcome addition to the set.

Several of golfdom's big-names—Cary Middlecoff, Sam Snead, Julius Boros, Mike Souchak, Vic Ghezzi, Denny Shute and Gene Sarazen—had no special reason to applaud Sam's freshman efforts. But they did.

Ernie Vossler, of Fort Worth, Tex., twice paired with Urzetta in the Masters, said: "It's an old story. The newcomers seldom get much publicity. What about this (Ken) Venturi? I didn't see anything about him being picked to be up there. Sam's playing good golf. He seems to be at home in this wind. Wish I could have some of his shots. They're terrific."

MIKE SOUCHAK, a 29-year-old 210-pounder, former Duke University footballer who has been cashing paychecks regularly, chipped in: "Sam's fooling a lot of us. He's playing this wind as if he owned it. My putting and chipping's been poor. This is a tough business. You'd think Sam would be tired after his first trip. Instead, he's goin' like blazes. He's got the game. Give him a little time.

"Say, how well does he know that course in Rochester? Yeah, the one we play the National Open on. I'll be playing with Sam up there during the practice rounds. I'm coming up there a week ahead of time. That's the one I want."

Ken Venturi, 24-year-old three-round sensation who skidded to an 80 and won ONLY second place, was a roommate of Urzetta in the Walker Cup matches.

"Sam's game is picking up great, if you ask me," he said. "I know he has the shots. But I don't envy him on this tour. Me? I won't turn pro. Too tough. I like home cooking. Sure, I'm coming up for the Open. I expect Sam and his brother Babe to give me a few tips about that course."

JACK GATES

MIKE SOUCHAK VENTURI, who later said his post-tournament remarks were "misunderstood" when he reportedly criticized players and officials, impressed us as a youngster who actually was a bit frightened by the time the final round rolled around. When commenting on his game he seemed to be well prepared for questioners.

"I was going for a record out here today," he said last Saturday before teeing off. "The wind is awful strong. I'm ready to tackle it, but before this I was sure I'd have a record round."

Confidence? Maybe. But more likely just a scared kid who still hasn't matured. But he's a good golfer. Very good.

Funny thing, though. Few of the best ones talk that way. But as Sam reminded: "Don't ever count out any of these fellows in the big ones. Remember Jack Fleck?"

B'golly, yes. He's the defending U. S. Open champ.

Rochester Junior League Reviews, Previews

A program entitled "The Junior League in Our Day" was given last evening at the annual dinner meeting of the Rochester Junior League at the Country Club of Rochester.

Mrs. Hawley W. Ward, a charter member of the Junior Workers, recalled the league's birth and infancy; Miss Helen Little told of the growth and maturing of the Rochester group; Mrs. Robert Wadsworth reported the year's accomplishments, and Mrs. Daniel G. Kennedy gave a glimpse of future activities.

The following new officers of the league were also elected: President, Mrs. Kennedy; vice presidents, Mrs. Richard Gearheart and Mrs. C. Jeremy Crouch; recording secretary, Mrs. Perry Branch; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Richard Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Hubbard III, and assistant treasurer, Mrs. Robert D. Skerritt.

This annual meeting marked as official Mrs. Robert H. Wadsworth's election to the regional directorship.

Also included in the program was the welcoming of the 29 provisional members of the Junior League into active membership by Miss Gail H. Brewer, chairman of the provisional training program.

The new members include: Miss Ruth Rochow, Miss Sally Clark, Mrs. John Utz, Mrs. Newton Green, Mrs. David Naramore Jr., Mrs. Charles Wadhams, Mrs. Frank Greene, Mrs. Charles N. Gleason, Mrs. Leonard Zartman, Mrs. Howard S. Thomas Jr., Mrs. F. Leslie Dollinger, Mrs. John Handy, Mrs. Daniel Slocum, Mrs. William Cowgill, Mrs. Charles Frame, Mrs. John Leinen, Mrs. Rodney Wilbur, Mrs. Robert Seibert, Mrs. Lockwood Doty Jr., Mrs. Stuart Orrick, Mrs. Howard Gillan, Mrs. Gibson Lunt, Mrs. Fred Cheney, Mrs. John Bennett, Mrs. John McCurdy, Mrs. Donald Graham, Mrs. Ray Hickok, Mrs. Van Norden Logan and Mrs. Lester Kune.

Brighton Fire-Radio Project Completed

Completion of a $17,000 project putting radio equipment into the homes of all volunteer firemen will be part of the occasion to be celebrated by the Brighton Volunteer Firemen's Assn. at its annual dinner Saturday, April 28, in the Country Club of Rochester. The association presented the equipment to the Brighton Fire Department as a contribution toward more efficient fire fighting. The radios pick up fire calls and enable the men to know the location of fires at once.

Brighton Firemen To Dine Saturday

Newly named line and civil officers of the Brighton Fire Department will be installed at a banquet at the Country Club of Rochester Saturday.

The affair also will mark completion of installation of the department's $17,000 radio alert system, purchased by the volunteers and given to the fire district. Lawrence Mooney, department president, explained that the system alerts firemen in their homes and gives the exact location of a fire.

D. Macomber, 69, Former Brighton Fire Chief, Dies

A private funeral service will be held for DeWitt Macomber, 69, of 3535 Elmwood Ave., Brighton, former chief of the Brighton Volunteer Fire Department. Mr. Macomber died yesterday morning (May 4, 1956) in General Hospital after a short illness. Burial will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Mr. Macomber was the son of Francis A. Macomber, a former judge of the New York State Supreme Court, and grandson of Isaac Butts, one of Rochester's early settlers. He attended the former Bradstreets School, the Hackley School and Rochester Business Institute. He was a member of the Country Club of Rochester and the Genesee Valley Hunt. He served in the Army during World War I. He was widely known in golfing circles.

Mr. Macomber was the husband of the late Dorothy Robinson Macomber. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Samuel P. Connor Jr., Rochester, and Mrs. Roger H. Hetzel, Lancaster, Pa.; two sons, Allen and Edward Macomber, both of Rochester; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Hayden and Mrs. Howard Converse; two brothers, Francis S. Macomber and William Butts Macomber, all of Rochester, and 11 grandchildren.

The family requests tributes to Mr. Macomber take the form of contributions to the Rochester General Hospital Memorial Fund.

OPTICAL UNIT TO MEET

Dr. W. J. Youden of the National Bureau of Standards will speak before the annual dinner meeting of the Rochester section, Optical Society of America, tonight at 7 in the Country Club of Rochester. "Dice, Data and Deductions," will be his topic.

SOME profound changes have been brought about with the arrival of fangled gadgets and rules in golfdom, but no substitute has yet been found for Walter Hagen.

His contributions to the game will never be forgotten. The 64-year-old links great, a Rochester native, has not been forgotten by his many admirers here, either. The Haig, now living in Detroit, will be honored at a testimonial dinner on Friday, June 8, about a week before the National Open Golf Tournament (June 14-16) over Oak Hill Country Club's East course.

The dinner site has not yet been named officially, but the appropriate place would be the Country Club of Rochester, where he served as caddy master and later assistant pro under the late Andrew Christie. Plans call for Hagen to receive a plaque and a scroll.

Brighton-born Walter Hagen, subject of a soon-to-be-released book, The Walter Hagen Story, will be the honored guest at the Country Club of Rochester Invitation Stag Dinner on Friday, June 8, it was announced yesterday.

Hagen will be presented a scroll and plaque by the Senior Professional Golfers Assn., acclaiming him the outstanding pro golfer of the century.

The event at CCR, where he formerly served as caddy master and assistant pro, will be held in connection with the National Open Golf Tournament here. The title test is slated June 14-16 at Oak Hill Country Club's East course.

MOVE over, farmers, gardeners, house painters, outdoor sports promoters, manufacturers of bathing suits and sun glasses and the rest of you frustrated citizens who like to make hay while the sun shines.

ELMER MICHAEL
... 285 or better now?

You've had it, to be sure. But you have more company — Elmer Michael. He'd like to meet the long fellow who wrote, "Into each his some rain must fall..."

"Never in all my time in this business have I seen such a miserable spring—and winter," the 55-year-old Oak Hill Country Club grounds superintendent said yesterday. "This is awful. Right up to last Monday, I wasn't too sure about having this East course ready for the National Open (June 14-16), but now I'd say I'm around 90 to 95 per cent sure."

Before the rains came, Elmer figured 281 would be the winning score for the 30-par four rounds of the United States Golf Assn. title tournament. But he has changed his mind. It will take 285 strokes or better now, he says, because the top rollers no longer can bank on fairway rolls.

Seeding has been out of the question," the pleasant and talented supervisor of the East and West 18-hole courses told a small group of sympathetic listeners. "We've put in about 1,500 feet of tile this spring for drainage. I can't tell you how many acres of sod we've used. I'd say about four. We took it from the East and West courses—off the playing areas—and we got some from our nursery. The sod has been a life-saver."

"We've using it around the 11th green, right over here where we put in an artificial pond. This 11th will be a hum-dinger when we get through with it. There's some more grading to be done and some traps to be placed behind the green. Oh, there's plenty of work ahead of us."

His assistant, Lynn Kellogg, paused in his work of building a foot bridge over a creek and explained that the long, hard winter wiped out all early construction plans.

"All we could do was just watch that snow fall," said Kellogg. "We never had a chance during March—none at all. It's still so wet out there that caddy carts are not yet allowed on the course."

ELMER now is working on borrowed time. His workmen, eager to tell the weatherman where to get off, realize that the unseasonable combination of cold and rain poses a problem for the 35-man crew. There have been major changes made at all holes except the 14th, they pointed out. The 11th and 15th are in need of attention.

Sandtraps are numerous. "About 27 new ones," Elmer said. "But we also pulled out quite a few. We've used about three or four carloads of white sand—glass sand, we call it, from New Jersey. Same kind of white sand they use at Marina. We started using it two or three years ago. Works fine. It's beautiful."

Born in Buffalo in 1900, Elmer lived for many years on an Erie County farm owned by his mother's grandparents. This farm later was converted into the first Western New York golf course. It was known as the Buffalo Country Club, later was sold to the city of Buffalo. It still is a golf course—Greener Cleveland Park.

"In 1909," Elmer recalled, "my father became greenskeeper at the Park Club of Buffalo. This course was built on the old Pan-American Exposition grounds, and it was there that I received my indoctrination into the field of greenskeeping. I started at the age of 12 during my summer vacations from school, doing odd jobs. I continued working through 1916 at which time the Park Club bought property for a new course in Orchard Park."

"I spent the summer of 1917 helping install the watering system there. A year later, I had a chance to become assistant to my father. It took quite a lot of thought. I quit school and joined him. And in 1922, when the club decided to remodel the city course, it was my fortune to be placed in charge of this work."

"When I think back it seems quite an undertaking for a 25-year-old kid to look after the maintenance of a nine-hole course plus a rebuilding program. In June, 1923, I went to the Transit Valley Club. The members said I put the course in good shape. I was very grateful. But my first big break came when I applied for and got the job at Oak Hill in 1929."

AMONG OTHER things, he conditioned Oak Hill for the Hagen National Amateur, and two Times-Union Open tournaments.

"Our greens had been planted to the old Virginia Bent, very coarse and grainy," Elmer said. "My chairman of the greens at that time was Louis W. Chapin, father of our present president, W. C. Chapin. He approved the stripping and re-planting of a strain of bent which I had segregated and propagated while at the Park Club of Buffalo. This strain was discovered in some grass plots which were left over from the Pan-American Exposition. The change has proved to be very successful.

"Dr. John R. Williams has been the untiring guiding hand behind our landscape program. We have nursed, transplanted and planted upwards of 25,000 trees. These include most of the trees which grow in this climate and many rare varieties."

Oh yes, Mr. Michael has another position. He assumed the supervision of the Country Club of Rochester course 10 years ago. Head pro Charlie Bemish says Elmer has improved the golfing facilities immeasurably.

Still light-hearted despite the soggy condition of the Oak Hill course, Elmer left us with a smile.

"Give me 10 days of warm weather, preferably before the holiday," he said, "and we'll be ready. Or is that asking too much?"

Jack Fleck Tries Oak Hill Layout

Jack Fleck, the Baltimore Open Golf champion who has won the title three times, today tried to make a comeback in the Preakness Stakes. He finished 14th in the race, which was won by Flashy Fabius. Fleck's performance was disappointing, as he was unable to keep up with the pace set by the favorite. He was ridden by jockey Eddie Belmonte.

Yankees Win Over Chisox With Turley

The Yankees defeated the Chicago White Sox today in a 3-1 victory. Turley pitched a strong game, allowing only one run in six innings. The Yankees scored in the first, third, and fifth innings.

3-Year Probation Slapped On UCLA

UCLA has been placed on probation for three years by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). The probation is due to the school's failure to comply with NCAA rules regarding the recruitment of athletes.

Mashua Triumphs, Sets SS Record

Mashua, a young pitcher, set a new record for the St. Louis Cardinals today. He pitched a complete game, allowing only one run in nine innings. He struck out 12 batters and walked only one.

Unbeaten Brighton

Nets 97, 98 in Golf

Brighton High's seemingly invincible golf team kept rolling along yesterday, sweeping easily to wins No. 97 and 98 in succession over Pittsford and Irondequoit in a three-team Tri-County Golf League match at the Country Club of Rochester.

Team scores showed Brighton beating both opponents by 9-0 scores, while Irondequoit beat Pittsford by a 7-2 margin. Low scorers were Don Allen and Chris Kling of Brighton, who shot 71 and 83, respectively, with a bestball of 65. Pete Leibschutz of the Barons fired 78.

Mrs. Marion L. Beach Dies; Daughter of Sibley Founder

Mrs. Marion Lindsay Beach, widow of Daniel Beach and daughter of Alexander M. Lindsay, a founder of Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Co., died yesterday (May 22, 1956) after a long illness. She was 82.

Mrs. Beach was active for many years as a member of the board of directors of the Rochester Friendly Home, and only recently was made an honorary member of the board. She also was an honorary member of St. Aldens Chapel, Dartmouth, Mass.

Mrs. Beach also was a member of the First Graft Twig, and until recently was active in the Genesee Valley Club and the Country Club of Rochester. Her home was at 50 Barrington St. Mr. Beach was a prominent attorney here before his death.

Mrs. Beach is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George E. Norton and Mrs. John B. Moreton; two sons, Daniel M. Jr. and Alexander Beach; one sister, Mrs. James L. Thompson of Hartford, Conn.; a brother, Jesse W. Lindsay, and five grandchildren.

A funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. George L. Cadigan, D. D., and the Rev. George E. Norton, D. D., at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the chantry of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery. Friends may contribute to the Rochester Friendly Home in Mrs. Beach's memory.

Mrs. Trainor Posts 85 for Golf Medal

By BRUCE KOCH

Mrs. George Trainor of the Country Club of Rochester, the women's district golf champion, shot a 40 on the "tough" outgoing nine and then coasted home with 45 for an 85 and low medal score in the Women's Rochester District Golf Assn. medal tournament at Monroe yesterday.

It was the season opener. Their next meet is another one-day medal handicap play at Stafford on June 5.

Mrs. Trainor was well on her way to an excellent round with her 40 on the front nine. The second side usually plays easier. But three sixes popped up to ruin her score.

Low net honors were shared by three players in three separate handicap divisions. Mrs. Carl Hoesterey of the home club, a Class A competitor, shot 91-15-76; Mrs. James Donohue also of Monroe and playing in Class B, posted 93-17-76, and Mrs. Bill Gill of Locust Hill, in Class C, hit for 98-22-76.

Only other golfer to break 90 of the 124 who turned in cards was Mrs. William Warren, another Country Club swinger. She shot 87 on nines of 45-42.

CHIP SHOTS: The men open their season on the same course tomorrow with a one-day two-man best ball. The tourney will be in memory of Harry Fuller, for years the official RDGA starter . . . The Monroe course, as usual, is in excellent shape. It's sandy base makes it THE course for early-season play . . . Sammy Urzetta probably will tie up the pro tournaments hereabouts as he did the amateur tests a few years back. Sam teamed with Charlie Paris of Silver Lake for a scratch 69 and a victory in the pro-pro bestball at the Country Club this week. Joe LaMachia of Locust Hill and Russ Ebbets,

Sam Urzetta To Write of U.S. Open

SAM Urzetta, associate golf professional at the Country Club of Rochester, has joined the sports staff of The Democrat and Chronicle to express his views — in writing — of the National Open Golf Tournament at Oak Hill, June 14-16.

SAM URZETTA

Urzetta, former National Amateur champ, is familiar with all of the top golf pros, having competed against them on the Winter Circuit this year.

Sam hopes to qualify in the tournament himself. It would be his fifth appearance in the National Open. In 1951 at Detroit, he was second low amateur.

First story by the likeable East Rochester native will be carried on Monday, June 11, in your

Jaycees Will Dance At Country Club On Saturday

IF THE dance is as gay as its title sounds, Jaycees and their wives will have lots of fun next Saturday at the Country Club of Rochester.

"Spring on the Wing" was chosen as the name and theme for this year's annual event. Birds and flowers will be used in decoration.

An orchestra will play for dancing from 9:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.

THE DANCE will be preceded by the traditional awards dinner at which 12 key men of the Rochester Junior Chamber of Commerce will be honored. In addition, the distinguished service award will be given to one outstanding local Jaycee. E. Ward Wright was the recipient of this award when it was initiated last year.

Mention will be made at the event of two local Jaycees who were elected to offices at last weekend's Junior Chamber of Commerce state convention in Binghamton. Ogden C. Smith was elected a director of the U.S. Junior Chamber and Charles F. Bailey was chosen as an international director.

The 26 members and wives who attended the convention also saw Rochester win the sweepstakes trophy for "the outstanding program on traffic and safety in New York State."

DONALD B. HIGGINS is chairman of the dance and David Boehm is chairman of the dinner. Chairman of the awards committee is Phillip H. Fisher. Committee heads include Alfred Ginkel, tickets, and Jerome Steiker, publicity.

Among couples who will entertain in their homes prior to the dinner dance are Mr. and Mrs. Carl V. Nitze, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nesbit and Mr. and Mrs. John Brush Jr.

MEMBERS and their wives assisting with arrangements are Mr. and Mrs. Lowell K. Ahrendsen, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Corrigan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beckler, Mr. and Mrs. John Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. James Brobeck, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Handy, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip H. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. James DeMarle, Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Ceder and John O'Connell, Caryl Griffith and John Oakes.

Dawn R. Balden to Wed A. Morton Seymour Jr.

AT a family dinner party held in their home yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Rochow of East Avenue announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Dawn Rochow Balden, to A. Morton Seymour Jr., son of Mrs. A. Morton Seymour of Hillsboro Road and the late Mr. Seymour. The wedding will be held June 23 in the family home.

Mrs. Balden is the widow of 1st Lt. William E Balden, USAF, of McAfee, Ky., and is a graduate of Cornell University. She is a member of the board of directors of the Cornell Alumni Assn.

Mr. Seymour is a graduate of the University of New Mexico where he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is a member of the Country Club of Rochester and the Rochester Yacht Club.

12 Berths at Stake

Field of 221 Paired For Open Qualifying

One of the largest fields of topflight golfers in Rochester history will tee off Monday in quest of 12 berths for the National Open tournament, slated for Oak Hill Country Club June 14-16.

Each of the 221 players will play 36 holes, 18 at the Country Club of Rochester and 18 at Monroe Golf Club, with total score to decide the qualifiers. Of the 221 players, 133 are amateurs and 88 pros.

Chuck Jack, sectional committee chairman who'll run the qualifying tests, stresses that there inevitably will be a caddy shortage. He asks all players to bring their own bag-toters.

Due to the large field, the first starting time at each club will be 7 a.m. A 5-hour lapse is provided between each player's morning and afternoon starting time. The pairings:

Seventy of the contestants are from the Rochester District. Bobby Hill makes his tourney debut as a professional, Sam Urzetta and Frank Comisso will be on hand, and Monroe's George Valke, has been playing well enough to be considered a serious threat.

Jaros Has 8 Birds in Row In Prep for Open Qualifier

Mike Jaros, one the half-dozen Triple Cities golfers battling for the 15 berths allotted upstate New York in next Monday's National Open qualifier, ripped off eight birdies yesterday in winning En Joie's Memorial Day flag tournament. He was 4-under with 68 for the EJ 18.

Jaros will play Country Club of Rochester and Monroe G. C. as will 220 others, 80 of them pros, all shooting for the June 14-16 Open. Other TC hopefuls are Karl Krupitza, Paul Krenitsky, Emil Bilsky, John Grandeo, Wally Kohut, Bill Dino, and Gerry Dimmick. Only 12 of the 220 will qualify whereas Dallas, its quality considered quality, will place 37 of its 95.

Jaros, because he will be playing practice rounds in Rochester on Sunday, will pass up the 3-Way Pro-Amateur, this area's opening competition of the year. The En Joie team instead lists Wally Kohut (practicing in Rochester tomorrow), Chet Zareski, Phil DiOrio, Max Mrva, Frank Wesko, Bob Kohut, Frank Macek and George Jaros, Jr.

Vestal Hills will not know its team until post-time, since several member college students won't qualify until Saturday.

Yesterday's golf activity:

Open Caddies Meet Today

Caddies who have signed for the National Open, and youths wishing to caddy, will meet at the new caddy house at Oak Hill Country Club at 5:30 p.m. today, it was announced last night by Elmer Humes, chairman of the caddy committee.

Sam Urzetta, former National

Amateur champion who is now associate pro at Country Club of Rochester, and William C. Chapin, Oak Hill prexy and chairman of the Open, will be on hand to talk to the youths.

Humes said 110 caddies have been registered to carry in the big event, with 52 still needed. He stressed that high school pupils who still are in school cannot register.

Advance tickets for the Open were in the mail yesterday, Oak Hill officials announced.

Teams with Urzetta

Souchak to Write On Open for D&C

MIKE SOUCHAK, one of the stoutest hitters in golf, will write exclusive National Open Tournament stories for The Democrat and Chronicle.

The ex-Duke University football end, one of the most likeable members of the big-time links fraternity, will team with Sam Urzetta in covering the title test at Oak Hill Country Club East course, June 14-16.

Souchak, among the top money-winners in tournament play this year, also will comment on the Open practice rounds. Bylined stories by Mike and Urzetta, Country Club of Rochester associate pro, will appear in the D&C sport pages beginning Monday, June 11.

Mike is on the exempt qualifying list because of his finish in last year's Open at San Francisco — a tie for 10th with Jackie Burke.

The Souchak and Urzetta features will augment the stories of Sports Editor Paul Pinckney's staff, headed by golf writers Bruce Koch and Hans Tanner.

(See other story on Souchak, In The Pink, columns 1 and 2.)

25 Open Qualifiers Slated Tomorrow

The first part of the 1956 National Open—the important qualifying round—will be held at Rochester and 24 other sections across the country—tomorrow.

The largest sectional field of the record 1,934 entries will converge on Monroe Golf Club and the Country Club of Rochester. There are 221 paired for the Rochester section and they'll be gunning for 12 berths in the Open proper at Oak Hill June 14-16.

By far the strongest field will be at Dallas, where the Texas International Open is being played. The Dallas qualifier, because of rain which delayed the Texas Open, will be held Tuesday. There are 126 entries here and they'll be shooting for 27 berths.

The ratio works out to one berth for approximately 13 entries. Rochester's ratio is one for every 17.

Stars in the Rochester field, which starts firing at 7 a.m., include Lionel Hebert, Toby Lyons and Sam Urzetta, who have matched shots with the top pros in the last few years; Johnny Bulla, one-time big-name star, and pros and amateurs from all over upstate New York.

The Country Club has played "tough" during practice rounds and despite its par of 70 to Monroe's 72, players figured that the CCR would be tougher to score. Monroe will be the qualifying headquarters, with any playoff, if necessary, to be held there.

AFTER MIKE had completed his scoring siege, which brought his first tournament win, there were many who said the San Antonio layout was nothing more than a pitch-and-putt course. Others pointed out that, at 6,400 yards, Brackenbridge is anything but short. (Oak Hill East, incidentally, measures 6,902 yards.)

Among them was Sam Urzetta. The Country Club of Rochester associate pro, 1950 National Amateur champion, and Mike became fast friends while touring the Winter circuit.

"Mike plays well on any course," said Urzetta. "He has tremendous power, knows how to control his shots, and has the right kind of temperament for competitive play. I'm picking him as one of the big threats in the National Open."

Anyway, Mike's sizzling streak didn't stop at San Antonio. He fired a seven-under-par 65 on the final round of the Texas Open and finished with a 273, 15 under par, good for $6,000 top money. He won the Seminole pro-amateur and pro-individual events; took second in the Palm Springs Invitational in a playoff with Shelley Mayfield and Fred Haas; won second in the Azalea Open; tied for fourth in the Masters at Augusta; finished second in the Western Open, Miller Open, and Insurance City Open.

CCR Golf Field Awaits Open Qualifier Results

By BRUCE KOCH

Just how strong the field will be for the annual Country Club of Rochester Invitation depends on just who qualifies for the National Open.

With all the hullabaloo on _____

With all the hullabaloo on the Open, the CCR event, year in and year out the best best-run amateur tourney in the District, has crept up on us. And this, the 29th edition of the CCR tourney, could very well be the best yet.

The CCR tournament committee, through one of its members, George Trainor, has contacted several of the top amateurs in the nation and should these amateurs qualify for the Open at Oak Hill, June 14-16, some of 'em have promised to be on hand for the CCR play.

Eddie Meister of Cleveland, an alternate on the last Walker Cup squad, and Bob Gardner of New York, a California State Amateur champ in the late 1940s, are the most likely to be present. Of course there are fellows like Big Bill Campbell, the West Virginia legislator, Harvie Ward, the Amateur champ, and Ken Venturi, the recent sensation of the Masters tourney, who will attempt to qualify. And should they make the Rochester trip, they'll be potential entrants in the CCR tourney.

In addition to these, tourney chairman Jim Henderson and vice chairman Bill Baker report that John Miles, the cool-playing New Yorker, Bob McCall, the Youngstown smasher who needs no introduction, and the usual bumper crop of local talent will be matching shots.

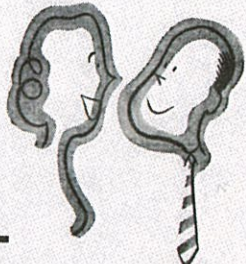

Add to all this the presence of Walter Hagen at the annual stag dinner, Friday night, and you have an attractive weekend of golf.

Hagen Sees Dozen Potential Open Winners

By DICK TRABOLD "I wouldn't predict a winner in the National Open now. fairways I'll give my opinion," he said.

Hagen received a plaque and a scroll, given officially by the National Professional Golfers Assn. He came to Rochester to receive it.

Hagen came in by air from Detroit yesterday afternoon. This morning he was to fly back to Detroit, and return Monday for the U.S. Open at Oak Hill.

"Any one of those fellows who knows how to play any course under any conditions could win," Hagen said. "It's the guy who happens to be hitting his shots when the Open is going who wins. They're all good golfers.

"However, no one except myself expected me to win in 1914. There are lots of young fellows in this tournament who are known only in their own back yard. And fellows like Jack Fleck, really a veteran golfer, can come through again as Jack did last season. He still has the game to do it."

Asked about modern day golfers against those in his era, he said: "The golfers today have some advantages, of course. They play in tournaments almost around the calendar. When I was starting, you had to win a big one before you went on a 'barnstorming' trip. And those barnstorming trips—or exhibition matches—meant a lot to your play later.

"You were on the spot each time you played an exhibition. You were playing the home pro and his best area partner. They were good on their particular course, and you had to be good to win. It sharpened you.

"I would think that the golfers of my time, given the same conditions today's golfers have, would do all right.

"Your present-day golfers have better course conditions, use more clubs than we did. The scoring is lower than it was, but give them the same conditions we played under and—I wonder?"

"If I might mention it, the reason I'm going back to Detroit tomorrow is that I must autograph some 500 more copies of my book, 'The Walter Hagen Story,'" Walter said with his usual modesty. "The book is selling well wherever I go."

Hagen doesn't play any more. "After all, I'm over 63 years old."

About the golf game of his son, Walter Jr., who played in the Country Club of Rochester Invitation qualifier yesterday, Hagen Sr., said "Humph."

Walter recalled that before he won the National Open in 1914, he went to Owasco Country Club, Auburn, on the recommendation of Andy Christie, his then boss at CCR.

"Christie told me, in 1912, that I could take a job at Owasco if I wanted it. I found out it involved sweeping the greens, running the clubhouse, giving lessons, closing the clubhouse—and no time to play. I was at Owasco only part of the 1912 season, then went back to CCR.

"In 1913, Ernest R. Willard asked me if I would like to go to Brookline, which I did, finishing fourth—in a tie. The next year, he helped me go to the National Open again, at Midlo-

Huber's 68 Leads Qualifier at CCR

The boys from Syracuse took over in medal play at the Country Club of Rochester's annual invitation golf tournament yesterday

Tommy Huber, 27-year-old salesman from Syracuse, who once captained Colgate University's golf team, slammed the rather difficult CCR layout for a two-under-par 68 to win medalist honors. It was one of the lowest medal totals in the invitation qualifier that club officials could remember.

Right on Huber's heels were the Langan twins, also of the Salt City. Art had a standard 70 and Tony a 71. Three other players shot 71s—Rochester's Bob Crawford and Bert Wing, and Robert C. Myers of New York City.

It took a score of 75 to qualify. Five players hit this figure and four of them played off for two berths. The fifth, John Miles, of Winged Foot Country Club, Westchester County, who impressed at the tournament last year, had returned home by plane to witness the Floyd Patterson - Hurricane Jackson boxing match. He figured his 75 was "in," and planned to be back at the CCR early this morning.

Charles Glavin, New York City, and Eddie Randall, the perennial senior contender from Oak Hill, outlasted Jack (Tiger) Tucker of Lake Shore and Syracuse's John Ward for the berths.

Match play starts this morning with George Trainor, the defending champ, squaring off against Bruce Koch. These two opened the tourney last year and Trainor won on the 19th hole. Koch was a 73-shooter yesterday.

Two matches will be played in the championship today and the semifinals and finals tomorrow. Championship flight pairings follow: (Other pairings were not available last night. They were being arranged and will be displayed in the men's locker room at the Country Club this morning):

8:45—Trainor vs. Koch; 8:51—Crearson vs. Myers; 8:57—Randall vs. Wing; 9:03—Bush vs. Art Langan; 9:09—Tony Langan vs. Don Allen; 9:15—Glavin vs. Warren Simmons; 9:21—Crawford vs. Bill Pulsifer; 9:27—Tony Cagnazzo vs. Huber. Yesterday's scores:

Tom Huber (Syracuse)	33-35-68
Art Langan (Syracuse)	35-35-70
Tony Langan (Syracuse)	37-34-71
Bob Crawford (Durand)	35-36-71

Urzetta Sees Par Elusive in Big Test

By SAM URZETTA

AFTER watching the practice rounds of the early arrivals for the National Open at Oak Hill this week, I still consider 281 or 282 a good score to shoot at.

I figure that, even with good weather, such as we had yesterday, that par won't be broken.

It's early yet, though, and I want to look at some of the other players who will be coming in Monday. Let's keep this in mind: this city has a wonderful field for the 56th Open, but nobody can tell you how much pressure is on each player until he has played in this big one.

THE Open, along with the Masters, the PGA Championship, and the Tam O' Shanter, are the top pressure tournaments. And this one coming up Thursday, Friday and Saturday is the biggest of them all.

One mistake can be very costly—and it could be made on the last hole, on the last day of the tournament.

I know that all of the pros and amateurs who have played in a U.S. Open have experienced the tension that goes with it.

HERE are the best names in golf shooting for prestige and financial rewards. And I have seen players who look great in practice suddenly crack under the strain of such an important event.

Toss in a few bad days—bad weather, I mean—and then see what happens. In my opinion, one or two days of high winds on the East course could push the winning total as high as 284. Maybe 285 or 286.

But I'll be able to say more on this subject after Thursday's and Friday's rounds.

IT was a pleasure for me to see Jack Fleck again at yesterday's National Golf Day play. Here is a National Open champion who has a sound game of golf. He appears to be in great shape, and he told me that he really enjoyed playing such a fine course as Oak Hill East.

He said that most of the courses on the winter tour just couldn't be compared with Oak Hill. Jack figures the greens are especially good. And he went out there yesterday and gave a performance of a true champion.

Urzetta's 69 Wins Seneca Falls Open

SENECA FALLS, June 10—Sam Urzetta, associate pro at the Country Club of Rochester, fired a 35-34—69 here this morning to win the $2,500 Seneca Falls Open by a one-stroke margin over three other pros.

Urzetta, who won $1,000 by beating out 119 other entrants, left the course to return to Rochester before all results were in. At that time, Gene Coghill of Jefferson, N. H., a former Rochesterian, had shot a red-hot 33 on the front nine and still had a chance for the championship, but slipped to 37 on the back nine and wound up tied with Frank Urzetta of Irondequoit Country Club, Sam's brother, and Steve Doctor of Amityville, L. I., at 70. Toby Lyons of Jamestown, 1955 champion, tied for 13th with a 73.

Jerry Mayers Posts Durand-Eastman Ace

Jerry Mayers, of 2856 Dewey Ave., had the thrill of his golfing life yesterday at Durand-Eastman course when he scored a hole-in-one on the 150-yard fourth hole. He used a 7 iron. Carl Eltri, Bill Vochugr and Tom O'Reilly were in the foursome with Mayers. They were so excited when the round was over they left without posting their total scores or telling anyone in the golf shop about them.

Other Rochester entrants with low scores included Howie DeAngelus, Oak Hill, with 71; Bobby Hill, Midvale, with 73 and Mike DeGregory, Rochester, who also shot 73. Low amateur was John MacDonnell of Auburn. MacDonnell's 36-35—71 placed him in a three-way tie for fifth and earned him $150 worth of merchandise.

Top 18 finishers:

Sam Urzetta, CCR—69; Frank Urzetta, Irondequoit—70; Steve Doctor, Amityville, L. I.—70; Gene Coghill, Jefferson, N. More Skill Required

Wind Could Change Picture for Open

By SAM URZETTA

THAT light wind at Oak Hill yesterday probably made a lot of the National Open qualifiers think twice before hitting.

Let's suppose the wind velocity increases for the title play on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Oak Hill can be very tricky to play in the wind, and the golfers would be required to play their shots differently. Much more skill is involved.

For example, at the Masters Tournament in Augusta, Ga., the wind almost blew us off the course. I'm pretty sure that they won't get that kind of wind here, but you never can tell. When the wind goes up, so do the scores.

I took particular notice of the wind early yesterday morning, just before going to the Seneca Falls Open. It was blowing much harder in the morning than it was in the afternoon, when I returned to Oak Hill and to our course, Country Club of Rochester.

ONLY a few scores were reported at Oak Hill East yesterday. Most of the boys were content to use several practice balls on every hole.

But what interested me was the early arrival of several fine players whom I know well. Most of the rest of the field should check in tomorrow, of course, for the first official day of practice.

Among these coming in yesterday was Walt Burkemo, who led the nation's Open qualifiers. He is a very capable player. He seems to play tough courses exceptionally well. He proved that at the Seminole Tournament in Florida.

Then there was Dick Mayer, who played with Burkemo. He has a wonderful game. Dick showed the field a thing or two at the 1954 Open on the Baltusrol, N.J., course. He played very well right up to the 72nd hole. He had a bad break, as I recall, at that last hole.

Bill Casper, out of California, looks sharp. It's a pleasure to watch Bill putt. He's one of the best in the business.

AND BIG Julius Boros came in. Julius played Oak Hill East here in '49. That was when we had the National Amateur Tournament there. There have been quite a few changes made on the course since he last played it, but he's pretty well acquainted with it. A lot of the pros are saying that a good driver will do all right in the Open. Well, all I can say is that Boros has a good wood game.

I can't mention all the players out there at this time, but I don't want to overlook Ernie Vossler. Did you see the way he played down in Dallas recently? He's a strong player who could cause a lot of trouble.

I'll take another look at the Open field today. And I hope that wind doesn't keep blowing.

(Urzetta, 1950 National Amateur champion, now associate pro at the Country Club of Rochester, will write daily stories this week on the Open.)

Allen Tips Trainor For CCR Golf Title

Could Donny Allen, the 18-year-old, 130-pound Country Club of Rochester golfer, be the successor to Sammy Urzetta and Bobby Hill as Rochester's top young amateur golfer?

If you saw Allen play yesterday, you'd probably say, "yes, definitely." Allen defeated the veteran George Trainor, 3 and 2, to win the annual Country Club of Rochester Invitation.

The slender Brighton High School golfer fired two-under-par golf at Trainor to become the youngest player ever to wear the CCR crown. CCR pro Charlie Bemish, who has helped young Allen along the way, and who refereed yesterday's match, commented, "It was amazing the way Don met the ball so squarely, so many times."

Actually, Trainor was on the defensive all afternoon. George, the defending champ, opened up with six straight 4s and found himself 3 down. Allen birdied the second and third holes with 12-foot putts and won with a regulation 3 at the 193-yard fourth.

Evidence of how well Allen was meeting the ball is the fact that on the second hole, a 447-yarder on which the best in the area had to use two woods last Monday in the Open qualifier to reach the green, Allen pumped a 7-iron in yesterday. On the sixth, a 421-yard par 4, he used a 9-iron for his second; on 13, another par 4, this one 436 yards he got home with an 8-iron, and on the tough 14th, a 200-plus par 3, he was on the putting surface with a 3-iron shot.

Trainor eliminated surprising Peter Bush in the morning round, 3 and 2, while Allen bested Durand's Bob Crawford, 5 and 3. Crawford, after an excellent 71 qualifying round had become the tourney darkhorse before Allen side tracked him. Finalist cards:

Par, cut	444	344	534-55

NATIONAL Golf Day contributions went to worthy causes. At our course (Country Club of Rochester) on Friday we had 160 taking part. The money contributed by golf fans, I can assure them, is well spent.

But back to the Open for a bit more comment. Wasn't it great that Ken Venturi had that 67 yesterday?

Ken and I had quite a talk before he teed off. He and I played together on the Walker Cup team. Harview Ward is another of my former teammates. And, believe you me, there are two golfers who are a credit to the game.

DEAR HENRY:

"When I read your column in this morning's paper (June 7th), I suffered a mild attack of nostalgia because, believe it or not, I started playing golf at Genesee Valley Park in 1903 and I attended many ball games played by Al Buckenberger's Bronchos at Culver Field in University Avenue, where, as you stated, the Gleason Works now stands.

"I hope you won't mind my correction, but the original golf course at Genesee Valley Park had 14 holes, not merely nine as you wrote. Golfers desiring a full 18-hole round replayed holes one, two, three, and 14, after finishing the first 14, to get the full count. I think it was in 1904 that I followed Gurney T. Curtis (the late father of Gen. Edward P. Curtis, Eastman vice president and Special Assistant to President Eisenhower on Aviation Planning), and a man named Rhett, both members of the Country Club of Rochester, who were playing for the city golf championship on the Genesee Valley Park course. Curtis, for years the city's outstanding golfer, won easily. W. W. Dake and Irving S. Robeson, engaged in a contest for the consolation prize, played directly behind them. Dake, who held his clubs cross-handed, won the match.

"At that time the Genesee Valley Golf Club had a clubhouse almost directly across the river from the summer quarters of the old Rochester Athletic Club, which later was destroyed by fire. The first tee of the 14-hole course was directly in front of the clubhouse.

"An athletic field, with a cinder path for runners, and a third of a mile banked dirt bicycle track, occupied that area on the west side of the river, near the athletic club, which is now used as a public skating rink. Bicycle races were held there evenings and on Saturday afternoons in the summer, and I saw Al Zimbrich, Andy Andrews, your father, and many other riders whirling around the track.

"You mention Harry O'Hagan as playing first base and, one year, managing the Buckenberger's Bronchos. Did you know that he made the first unassisted triple play in organized baseball while a member of the Rochester club? Others on the Broncho roster in that era were George Smith, who played second; Joe Bean, shortstop; Ed Greminger, at third; George (Deerfoot) Barclay, in left field. Billy Lush, who later coached the Yale baseball team, was a crack outfielder. One season he stole 54 bases. Some of the teams managed by Al Buckenberger were as good as the city has ever had.

"LEWIS B. SWIFT."

to know every rough, trap, water hazard, fairway and green on the course, before going all out.

I can't stress too much the pressure that suddenly is sensed by the entire field when it starts playing for keeps.

Winning an Open championship is a dream of every golfer. But don't forget, it can easily become a nightmare if it slips out of your fingers on that final day.

(Sam Urzetta of East Rochester, National Amateur champion of 1950, now associate pro at the Country Club of Rochester, and Mike Souchak, one of the Open favorites, will cover the National Open Tournament for The Democrat and Chronicle. Souchak's first story will appear tomorrow morning.)

Haig Learns How Pro Must Dress

White Buck Skins And Bandanna

This is the second of a series of 20 articles by the old-time great golfer, Walter Hagen, which will appear daily in The Register.

By Walter Hagen

I played a lot of golf during those five years I was assistant to Andrew Christy at the Country Club of Rochester, N. Y.

Christy, Alf Campbell, the pro at the Oak Hill in Rochester, and I went to Buffalo for a few practice rounds prior to the National Open there in 1912.

I got in one round, a 73, much lower than either of the other two could manage. When time for the Open rolled around, however, Andy decided I should stay home and look after the pro shop while he played in the Open.

He did promise me, as a reward for staying home and working, that I could go to Toronto and play in the Canadian Open.

However, I was in Buffalo long enough to carry away one big impression: How a real professional golfer must dress.

It was there I saw Tom Anderson, jr., a brother to Willie, winner of the American Open in 1901, 1903, 1904, and 1905.

Right then, I was far more impressed with Tom's clothes than I was with Willie's record. Tom had class!

His shirt was pure white silk with bright red, blue, yellow and black stripes. His white flannel pants had

SLACKS

B'g, Strong, Healthy

I was big and strong—almost 6 feet tall and around 175 in weight—and plenty healthy. I didn't smoke and I'd never taken a drink. In fact I never smoked a cigarette or took a drink until after I was 26 years old and had left Rochester.

Members of the club liked to play with me and treated me as a friend, but I still did not feel that I could walk in the front door of the clubhouse to hoist a post-round glass or to enjoy a steak dinner.

Rochester, like all other places where the game was popular, considered the pro, the paid golfer, as someone outside the social sphere.

I had broken that rule once with the help of a member, Mr. Harry Strong. I was about nine at the time and had caddied many rounds of golf for him. He reached the finals in a tournament and was in a play-off with Mr. J. C. Powers. He hired me again, but for an unusual job.

He took another caddie along with him when he teed off and sent me inside the clubhouse to the bartender. I was to meet the two players at the second hole with a shaker of cocktails. That first shaker the two shared equally. I scurried back to Herman for a refill.

the cuffs turned up just once. If he'd rolled 'em twice, he'd have been a hick.

He wore a red bandanna knotted casually around his neck and a loud plaid cap on his head. His white buckskin shoes had thick red rubber soles and sported the widest white laces any two shoes could carry.

I decided right then to copy that outfit from white buckskins to bandanna.

Bright Sport

When Christy returned from Buffalo (he didn't come close to winning), he helped me get lined up for Toronto. I didn't win.

There was one bright spot in that tournament for me. I finished one stroke ahead of Alex Smith, the grand old Scotsman who had won the National Open in 1906 with a score of 295 for 72 holes, breaking 300 for the first time in the history of golf in the United States.

Christy left the Country Club of Rochester, so in 1912 I became pro and I asked George Christ, my former fellow caddie and baseball pal, to be my assistant. I gave my dad a job as greenskeeper, too.

Here I was—19 years old, a real pro with an assistant, a salary of approximately $1,200 for eight months of the year and a chance to make extra cash by giving lessons at two dollars an hour.

I also collected a fee of $1.50 a month per set for keeping 200 sets of clubs clean during the season. Also, through the winter we'd make clubs in the pro shop for sale during the summer. I really felt important. I'd come a long way from that job as a caddie in 1900 at 10 cents an hour.

Shuttle Service

At the fourth green I hid in a nearby ditch waiting for them to arrive. This time, after their green shots and putts, Mr. Strong generously insisted that his opponent imbibe most of the liquid refreshment.

I followed this procedure for the entire match—dashing to the clubhouse bar for a refill in the shaker, then scuttling back to meet the players on alternate holes. In spite of my efforts and Mr. Strong's hospitality Mr. Powers won the match.

By the time they had reached the last two holes they were both spraying their shots all over the course.

However, the play-off was most important to me because it gave me the unusual opportunity of seeing the inside of the beautiful and exclusive clubhouse of the Country Club of Rochester. No other caddie had been able to wangle that!

Paul Hyde Dies During Golf Play

INDIANAPOLIS, June 22 (AP)

—Western Senior Golf Assn. officials declared J. B. Bixler of Akron, Ohio, the WSGA 1956 champion today after a player collapsed and died during a rain-storm. Highland Golf course was declared unplayable for the scheduled second and final round.

Paul H. Hyde, 67, former president of the Mentholatum Co., Buffalo, N.Y., collapsed and died on the eighth green after exploding his ball out of a soggy sand trap. Friends said he had suffered a heart attack about a year ago. (Hyde was well known in Rochester, having competed in several Country Club of Rochester invitation tournaments).

Lauer, Maloney Share Title In Twilight Golf with 76s

Harold (Spike) Lauer, deft-putting Irondequoit veteran, and Ridgemont's young Dave Maloney shared the Twilight Golf League's annual individual crown with 76s at Irondequoit last evening.

Par for the hilly East Ave. layout is 72, but none of the 102 entrants could come close to it, especially on the tree-lined back nine. Lauer posted 36-40, while Maloney had 35-41.

Low net was taken by C. (Obie) Bailey of Country Club of Rochester with 81-11-70. Only other sub-80 shooter in the field was Owen Luckhurst of Ridgemont with 77.

Irondequoit won the team championship for the second time in the last three years a week ago. Leading scores:

Low Gross: Harold Lauer (Iron) 76, Dave Maloney (Ridg) 76.

Low Net: C. Bailey (CCR) 81-11-70, J. Maloney (OH) 84-12-72, K. Dickmen (Iron) 101-28-73, A. Foti (Ridg) 80-7-73, B. Henderson (Mon) 88-14-74, O. Luckhurst (Ridg) 77-3-74, J. Moore (LH) 84-10-74, L. Berghash (Iron) 80-6-74, J. Weinstein (Iron) 85-11-74, J. Holzschuh (Ridg) 83-9-74.

J. Weigand (Ridg) 87-12-75, L. Schultz (Iron) 84-9-75, G. Adams (BL) 84-9-75, J. Gallagher (Ridg) 88-13-75, P. Feldman (Iron) 85-10-75, Bill Morse (CCR) 87-11-76, J. Black (Ridg) 87-11-76, G. Calhoun (Ridg) 82-6-76, J. Herman (Iron) 84-8-76, F. Wilson (LH) 91-15-76.

TWILIGHT WINNERS—Harold Lauer, left, Irondequoit member, was declared co-champion of the Twilight League's annual individual golf sweepstakes last night when he shot 76 over his home course to tie Ridgemont's Dave Maloney. Center is C. (Obie) Bailey, CCR, who was low net with 70, and Jack Maloney, Oak Hill, runnerup with 72. A field of 102 competed.

Young Duo Wins CCR Tournament

A couple of youngsters — 15-year-old Jane Swan, and 14-year-old Bill Gregory — teamed to fire a scotch score of 42 and win the Country Club of Rochester's weekly mixed golf tourney last evening. Winners:

Scotch tournament: Low Gross—Jane Swan-Bill Gregory, 42. Low Net—Mr. and Mrs. D. Slocum, 49-15-34; Heather Connor-Pete White, 51-17-34; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hamlin, 43-7-36; Mr. and Mrs. R. Levis, 46-10-36; Mr. and Mrs. V. Serrell, 49-13-36.

Marlene Stewart, Canadian Open champion, headlines the field for the Country Club of Rochester's annual women's invitation, scheduled Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Miss Stewart won the CCR crown last year with a record score of 224 over the 54-hole route.

FIREWORKS displays, charcoal-broiled steaks, special golfing events, children's party games and prizes—these are some of the offerings planned to tempt area country club members and their families on day-after-tomorrow's holiday.

Ann Hildreth Advances

Mrs. Trainor Wins In WRDGA Play

By BRUCE KOCH

Mrs. George Trainor, in quest of her 14th Women's Rochester District Golf Assn. crown, and young Ann Hildreth, the medalist, advanced to the second round of the women's title tourney at Irondequoit Country Club yesterday.

Mr. W. Taylor (Man) and Jr. Miss J.

yesterday.

Mrs. Trainor played steady golf—except on the greens—to beat clubmate Mrs. Butler Cox, 6 and 5. Locust Hill's Miss Hildreth, only 16 years old, bested Mrs. R. Vowell of Brook-Lea, 2 and 1.

Four of the eight quarter-finalists are from the Country Club of Rochester.

Other than Mrs. Trainor, there is Mrs. William Warren, who became Mrs. Trainor's 10th straight finalist victim in the championship at the CCR last year; Mrs. Doug Coupe, and Mrs. Joe Lee. Joining this quartet and Miss Hildreth, are Mrs. Richard Wilson, a capable performer from Monroe; Miss Lynda Taylor, Monroe youngster, and Mrs. J. Pinckard of Ridgemont.

ANN HILDRETH

Matches continue through Friday, when the final will be staged.

Mrs. Trainor was 42 out on Irondequoit's hilly opening nine and the score gave her a 4-up advantage over Mrs. Cox. The latter won the 10th hole to slice the margin to three, but Mrs. Trainor came back with three straight wfn's to close the issue.

Miss Hildreth, who'll be a senior at Brighton High School come autumn, turned in 45 against Mrs. Vowell.

Today's feature match will be between Mrs. Trainor and Mrs. Warren, the former Judy Weis. Many observers feel that if anyone can end Mrs. Trainor's victory string it is Mrs. Warren. Yesterday's results, today's pairings:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT

3 from CCR, Locust Hiller Win Golf Tests

By HANS TANNER

It will be a battle of the Jeans and Anns today in the semifinal round of the Women's Rochester District Golf Assn. Championship at Irondequoit Country Club.

Jean (Mrs. George) Trainor, trying for her 14th WRDGA crown, will match shots with Jean (Mrs. Joseph) Lee in one match this morning, while Miss Ann Hildreth, the medalist, will oppose Ann (Mrs. Doug) Coupe in the other.

As a result of yesterday's matches, the tournament is beginning to look like strictly a Country Club of Rochester affair. Of the four semifinalists in the championship flight, only Miss Hildreth, a Locust Hiller, is not from the CCR. And it is the same in the first flight, where three of the four semifinalists are CCR members.

Easily the most thrilling match yesterday saw Miss Hildreth eke out an extra-hole decision over Mrs. Jean Pinckard of Ridgemout. Two-up at the turn, 16-year-old Ann lost the 10th, 11th, 12th and 15th holes to find herself 2 down. She halved the 16th with Mrs. Pinckard, then won 17 with a bogey.

Records Bound to Fall in Title Golf

Mrs. Trainor Gains Final Against Locust Hill Girl

By HANS TANNER

Whatever happens today, at least two records will fall in the Women's Rochester District Golf Assn.

Mrs. George Trainor of the Country Club of Rochester will oppose Ann Hildreth, 16-year-old Locust Hill Country Club star, in the 18-hole for the WRDGA crown over Irondequoit's tricky layout starting at 9:15 this morning.

If Mrs. Trainor wins, it will give her:

1. A total of 13 District championships.
2. Ten WRDGA titles in a row.

But if Miss Hildreth, who has been playing golf for only four seasons, comes through with a win she'll have set records by:

1. Becoming the first Locust Hiller to collect the crown.
2. Being the youngest entrant ever to be the champion.

Oddly enough, the youngest winner to date is Mrs. Trainor, who triumphed at the age of 17.

The apparently iron-nerved Miss Hildreth had little trouble in her semifinal match yesterday—routing Mrs. Doug Coupe of the CCR, 7 and 6. Ann made the turn in 41, despite a double-bogey 5 on the second hole. She was 5 up as the result of winning the 4th, 5th, 7th, 8th and 9th after winning the 1st and losing the 2nd. The match ended when Miss Hildreth won the 10th, halved the 11th and won the 12th.

Miss Trainor opened up an early four-hole advantage over clubmate Mrs. Joseph Lee and then hung on for a 4-and-3 decision in the other semi. After copping the 1st, 3d, 4th and 5th, Mrs. Trainor finished the front

CCR HOPES—Mrs. George Trainor, left, and Mrs. Butler Cox freshen up after matches in Women's Rochester District Golf Assn. Championship yesterday at Irondequoit Country Club. Mrs. Trainor advanced to finals in championship flight, while Mrs. Cox is in championship flight beaten eight final. Both are from the Country Club of Rochester.

Mrs. Trainor finished the front side 7-5-7 to see the margin snipped in half, but the many-times champion locked up the match with wins on the 12th and 13th.

TEE TALK—Matching cards on yesterday's rounds, Miss Hildreth was 5 up on Mrs. Trainor after 12 holes . . . This is only the second try in the WRDGA Championship for the Locust Hill girl. She played last year and won the first flight. After winning her match yesterday, she returned to Locust Hill and practiced a bit for today's play . . . Longest match thus far in the tourney was won by Mrs. Harold Miller of Irondequoit in the beaten eight of the second flight yesterday. She turned back Mrs. John Noonan of Oak Hill on the 22nd hole by almost holing out a chip shot for a deuce on the fourth—a par 3.

RESULTS—Championship Flight — Mrs. G. Trainor (CCR) def. Mrs. J. Lee (CCR) 4 and 3. Miss Ann Hildreth (LH) def. Mrs. L. Coupe (CCR) 7 and 6. Beaten eight—Mrs. B. Cox (CCR) def. Mrs. W. Taylor (Mon) 1-up. Mrs. R. Vowell (BL) def. Mrs. J. White (BL) 3 and 2.

First Flight—Miss E. Weller (CCR) def. Mrs. W. Baird (CCR) 19 holes. Mrs. M. Forman (Iron) def. Mrs. D. Allen (CCR) 3 and 2. Beaten eight—Mrs. I. Germanow def. Miss D. Fox (Ridge) 6 and 5. Miss E. Forzie (CCR) def. Mrs. G. Foster (Mon) 4 and 3.

Second Flight—Mrs. H. Webber (BL) def. Mrs. G. Doble (LH) 1-up. Mrs. M. Scott (OH) def. Mrs. N. King (Iron) 2-up. Beaten eight—Mrs. M. Gundry (BL) def. Mrs. J. Tiefel (OH) 3 and 1. Mrs. H. Miller (Iron) def. Mrs. J. Noonan (OH) 22 holes.

Third Flight—Mrs. V. Bennett (CCR) def. Mrs. P. Rutherford (OH) 6 and 4.

Mrs. S. Lines (Mon) def. Mrs. J. Doyle (Mon) 1-up. Beaten eight—Mrs. E. Traub (Mon) def. Miss G. Cox (CCR) 3 and 2. Mrs. R. White (CCR) def. Mrs. L. Gootnick (Iron) 6 and 5.

Fourth Flight—Mrs. J. Kier (LH) def. Miss L. Spurr (Mon) 3 and 2. Mrs. R. Paterson (Mon) def. Mrs. G. Hupp (Dur) 4 and 3. Beaten eight—Mrs. B. Ramaker (CCR) def. Mrs. S. Urzetta (Iron) 1-up. Mrs. W. Eckert (Gen) def. Mrs. G. Gustaf (Mon) 2-up.

Fifth Flight—final—Mrs. J. Geyer (Gen) def. Mrs. W. Gamble (Staff) 3 and 2. Beaten four final—Miss C. Leeper (Gen) def. Mrs. A. Messinger (Gen) 5 and 4.

PAIRINGS—Championship Flight—9:15 a.m.—Mrs. Trainor vs. Miss Hildreth. Beaten eight—8:56—Miss Cox vs. Mrs. Vowell.

First Flight—8—Miss Weller vs. Mrs. Forman. Beaten eight—8:07—Mrs. Germanow vs. Miss Forzie.

Second Flight—8:14—Mrs. Webber vs. Mrs. Scott. Beaten eight—8:21—Mrs. Gundry vs. Mrs. Miller.

Third Flight—8:28—Mrs. Bennett vs. Mrs. Lines. Beaten eight—8:35—Mrs. Traub vs. Mrs. White.

Fourth Flight—8:42—Mrs. Kier vs. Mrs. Paterson. Beaten eight—8:49—Mrs. Ramaker vs. Mrs. Eckert.

They'll Compete for $2,000 in Prizes

Newark Star Tops Monroe Golf with 69

Tall Bob Griswold, 25, a steady-playing golfer from Newark Country Club, shot a 3-under-par 69 to lead qualifiers in Monroe's annual invitation tournament yesterday.

Almost overshadowing Griswold's sub-par play was a pairing in today's championship flight — Warren Simmons vs. Don Allen.

They're Rochester's two top young golfers and talk of a match between the two youngsters has gone on all season. Simmons has had a half-dozen sub-par scores at his home Monroe course, and Allen dipping as low as 65 at Country Club of Rochester.

Allen shot a 70 yesterday, but it just served as a warmup. As defending champ, he was an automatic qualifier. Simmons ballooned to a 7 on the par-4 10th hole, but still came home in 75.

Darkhorse of the championship flight is Jack Tucker, the 5-time District champ who sneaked into the title group with a birdie 3 on the first playoff hole after shooting a qualifying 77.

FINAL GREEN—Ann Hildreth strokes putt on 19th hole of final match in women's city championship at Irondequoit yesterday. Mrs. George Trainor, who won crown, watches. Mrs. Trainor holed a 6-footer on the same green to take championship. Miss Hildreth, 16, is one of youngest ever to gain final round.

Locust Hill Girl Carries Golf Title Test to 19th Hole

Mrs. Trainor Wins 10th Straight Crown

By BRUCE KOCH
The end of a women's golfing era in the Rochester district was all but written into the record book yesterday before Mrs. George Trainor recovered brilliantly to win her 10th straight Women's Rochester District Golf Assn. championship.
She defeated a girl who seemingly can't miss winding up on the local women's golf throne one day—Miss Ann Hildreth.
Only experience kept the blue-eyed, blond Locust Hill lass from being the champion today. But, at 16, Miss Hildreth has many years ahead of her to capture the crown.
The match ranked with the longest in Mrs. Trainor's string of 40 consecutive match victories in District championship play, dating back to 1947. It ended on the 19th hole at Irondequoit Country Club when Mrs. Trainor, on the brink of defeat, determinedly stroked in a 6-foot putt for the title.

She had sliced her tee shot into the rough, missed her second badly and hooked to the left of the green on her third. In the meantime, Miss Hildreth, showing amazing calm for such a young competitor, smoothly stroked two wood shots to within 15 yards of the green. She shanked her third shot, however, and left her fourth 12 feet short of the cup.
The shanked shot was all the opening Mrs. Trainor needed. She hit a beautiful pitch to within 6 feet of the cup, and after Miss Hildreth went beyond on her 12-footer, the champ retained her title with a deft stroke.
On the 18th hole, Miss Hildreth had thrilled one of the largest galleries ever to witness a District Women's Championship match by dunking a putt of approximately 12 feet to get to go down the 19th.

Many felt that the turning point came on the 17th, a 368-yard par 4. Mrs. Trainor had won the 16th to get even, but hooked her tee shot on the 17th and had to play from behind trees, so that she was hitting her third shot before Miss Hildreth took her second. Mrs. Trainor still was short of the green on her third attempt. This led Miss Hildreth to hit a "safe" iron shot and play for a bogey 5, which looked as if it would be good enough to beat Mrs. Trainor. The experienced Country Club of Rochester woman hit a wedge approach 15 feet from the hole, however, and coaxed her putt in for a 5. Miss Hildreth had pitched 10 feet from the cup, but took three putts and was 1 down.
Neither golfer played particularly well. Mrs. Trainor's medal was 90 and Miss Hildreth's 91 for 18 holes. At the nine-hole turn, Mrs. Trainor was 2 up and appeared to have the title all wrapped up. A rally by Miss Hildreth put her 1 up after 13, however, setting the stage for the dramatic finish.

CHIP SHOTS: This didn't come from Mrs. Trainor—she's not the type to complain—but a painful shoulder contributed to the many misses she had on wood shots . . . She was very much impressed with her opponent and the caliber of her game. "She's as cute as a bug," laughed Jean afterwards. "She has a beautiful game and knows golf shots." Mrs. Trainor will champion Miss Hildreth, Lynda Taylor and her own daughter, Ann, to the National Women's Junior tournament at Toledo, Aug. 26.
Only other extra-hole matches Mrs. Trainor could remember in her string of triumphs were against Lois Patchen, in the final at Oak Hill several years

18 holes. At the nine-hole turn, Mrs. Trainor was 2 up and appeared to have the title all wrapped up. A rally by Miss Hildreth put her 1 up after 15, however, setting the stage for the dramatic finish.

She was very much impressed with her opponent and the caliber of her game. "She's as cute as a bug," laughed Jean afterwards. "She has a beautiful game and knows golf shots." Mrs. Trainor will chaperone Miss Hildreth, Lynda Taylor and her own daughter, Ann, to the National Women's Junior tournament at Toledo, Aug. 26.

Only other extra-hole matches Mrs. Trainor could remember in her string of triumphs were against Lois Patchen, in the final at Oak Hill several years ago, and in the semifinals at CCR last year. Mrs. Trainor still holds the distinction of being the youngest to win the city championship. She did it as Jean Ramaker, when 17 years old, in 1937. The last person to hold the crown besides Jean was Mrs. Walter Lyons in 1946.

The defeat wasn't easy for Miss Hildreth. It was a long walk back from the 19th green. She blinked a few tears out of her eyes, and smiled wistfully—almost as if she knows that someday she'll be champ.

CHAMPIONSHIP

Final, Mrs. G. Trainor (CCR) def. Miss A. Hildreth (CMD), 19 holes.
Beaten Eight—Mrs. Butler Cox (CCR) def. Mrs. R. Vowell (BL), 2 and 1.

FIRST FLIGHT

Miss E. Weller (CCR) def. Mrs. M. Forman (Iron), 2 and 1.
Beaten Eight—Miss E. Forgie (CCR) def. Mrs. I. Germanow (Iron), 4 and 3.

SECOND FLIGHT

Mrs. M. Scott (OH) def. Mrs. H. Webber (BL), 19 holes.
Beaten Eight—Mrs. H. Miller (Iron) def. Mrs. M. Gundry (BL), 3 and 2.

THIRD FLIGHT

Mrs. S. Lines (Mon) def. Mrs. V. Bennett (CCR), 2 up.
Beaten Eight—Mrs. R. White (CCR) def. Mrs. E. Traub (Mon), 1 up.

FOURTH FLIGHT

Mrs. J. Kier (LH) def. Mrs. R. Paterson (Mon), 4 and 2.
Beaten Eight—Mrs. W. Eckert (Gen) def. Mrs. B. A. Ramaker (CCR), 1 up.
Mrs. J. Geyer (Gen) def. Mrs. W. Gamble (Staff), 3 and 2.

FIFTH FLIGHT

Beaten Eight—Mrs. C. Leeper (Gen) def. Mrs. A. Messinger (Gen), 5 and 4.

On the 18th, a 417-yard par for women, Miss Hildreth found herself confronted with a 20-foot curler for a birdie to keep the match alive. She didn't take much time, but the ball broke into the cup for the 4 to send the match to extra holes. A par on the 19th was good for a win and the match.

Best golf of the day was played by Mrs. Trainor. She used 39 strokes on the front nine (including a double bogey 5 on the third) to take a three-hole margin over clubmate Mrs. William Warren. Mrs. Trainor applied the finishing touch by copping the first three holes on the back side to coast home with a 5-and-4 verdict.

Mrs. Lee sported a four-hole advantage over Monroe's Miss Linda Taylor at the end of nine. Then the CCR representative won the 11th and 12th holes and halved the 13th to walk off a 6-and-5 winner.

Breaking from a deadlock, Mrs. Coupe captured the 6th, 7th and 8th holes en route to a 5-and-3 conquest of Mrs. Richard Wilson of Monroe. Mrs. Wilson narrowed the difference by taking the 9th and 10th holes, but dropped the 11th, 12th and 13th.

Allen Defends His Crown in Monroe Golf

Don Allen will defend his title in the Monroe Golf Club Invitation tournament tomorrow through Sunday.

Allen, an 18-year-old swinger from the Country Club of Rochester, will have tough competition from such entrants as Dr. George Trainor of the CCR, the 1954 champ; Warren Simmons, Jack Snell and Mort Reed of Monroe; Owen Luckhurst of Ridgmont, Tony Cagnazzo, Brook-Lea; Jerry Leibel and Bill Chapin of Oak Hill; Pete Bush of the CCR, and Jack Tucker of Lake Shore.

The qualifying round tomorrow will precede two match play rounds Saturday and two Sunday. The final will be played Sunday afternoon.

Urzetta Finds Tourney Golf Tough Grind; Will Be Club Pro

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—After one and a half years as a professional golfer, Sammy Urzetta is the latest to conclude that playing tournament golf "is a tough grind".

Urzetta, 1950 National Amateur champion, turned pro in January, 1955 and last winter took a whack at the touring golf circuit.

"I played in 14 opens, finishing in the money in five or six," says Urzetta. "My best tournament was a 298 in the Masters. It gave me a tie for 12th position and $735."

Urzetta, who has worked in the lumber business and shirt button business, turned pro so he could take a job as assistant to pro Charley Bemish at the Country Club at Rochester, six miles from East Rochester, where Urzetta resides.

"I figured it was a good way to get into the teaching end of golf," says Urzetta: "Next year when Charley retires I'll be head pro. The club is the same one where Walter Hagen started as a caddy and became the pro."

Urzetta is no Hagen but he is one of Genesee Valley's top golfers. He was second to Toby Lyons in the 1955 Seneca Falls Open and this year he finished first. As an amateur he was unbeaten in Walker Cup competition, winning four matches—two in Boston in 1953 and two in Birkdale, England in 1951.

Urzetta this spring lost his chance to play in the National Open because he called a penalty on himself at his home club. During the first qualifying round his putter hit his toe and nudged the ball. Sam called it and the resultant penalty was the stroke which kept him from qualifying.

LEADERS—Freddy (Tiny) Watson, left, of Locust Hill and Charlie Boswell of Country Club of Rochester hit net 62 yesterday to take 4-stroke lead in Locust Hill Invitation bestball test. Watson kisses putter after recalling his long putt for birdie 2 on the 5th hole. The tournament winds up today.

B-L Duo Wins Bestball Golf With 129 Total

Mrs. Robert Vowell and Miss Pat Speares of Brook-Lea cooled off yesterday after their startling bestball score of 57 on Tuesday in the Western New York Women's Golf Assn. tournament at Ridgmont Golf Club, scoring a 72. But their two-day total of 129 still was good enough to win the tournament with a 36-hole total of 129.

Mrs. Vowell scored a gross 85 yesterday.

The consistent rounds of 68-68—136 scored by Miss Ann Hildreth of Locust Hill and Mrs. E. Traub of Monroe took second place, one shot ahead of three other duos. The three teams that tied were Mrs. Douglas Coupe and Mrs. B. A. Ramaker, Country Club of Rochester, 69-70—139; Mrs. T. Reineman and Mrs. A. Bartlett, Country Club of Buffalo, 70-69—139, and Miss Elaine Forgie and Mrs. J. Castle, Country Club of Rochester, 67-72—139.

Mrs. George Trainor, recent winner of her 13th Women's District Championship, followed her 76 of Tuesday with a 77 yesterday for a fine 36-hole score of 153.

Miss Hildreth was scored low gross score yesterday with an 81, while Mrs. Reineman had an 82 and Mrs. Joseph Lee and Mrs. William Warren of Country Club of Rochester each scored 83.

Mrs. Reineman scored an eagle two on the 320-yard eighth hole when she sank a 4-iron shot. The prize winners:

Mrs. Vowell-Miss Pat Speares. (B-L) 57-72—129.

Miss Ann Hildreth (LH) and Mrs. E. Traub (Mon.) 68-68—136.

Mrs. D. Coupe and Mrs. B. A. Ramaker (CCR) 69-70—139.

Mrs. T. Reineman and Mrs. A. Bartlett (CCR) 70-69—139.

4 Youngsters Gain District Golf Wins As Defender Loses

By BRUCE KOCH

Defending champion Bill Cory and medalist Jimmy Morreale were relegated to sideline seats as four youngsters, 18 years old and under, and two former champions surged into the quarterfinal round of the Rochester District Golf Assn. championship at the Country Club of Rochester yesterday.

Gene Robinson, who won this for a fellow who has been playing tournament golf for such a short time, beat the capable Raymond (Red) Moran of Durand on the 18th in the first round, then beat out three-time champ Bill Chapin, who excels in extra-hole play, on the 21st—coming out of a sand trap for a winning par.

Rounding out the quarterfinal matches was Simmons' victory over bowler-golfer Johnny Quinzi. Warren didn't play particularly well—for him—in defeating Eddie Noakes of Ridgemont, but found the range with great approach shots on the final few holes to whip Quinzi. Match results, pairings:

Wing, Allen Favored

Allen, who has won two of the last three "big" tournaments, the 1955 Monroe Invitation and this year's CCR Invitation, played a total of 36 holes yesterday, disposing of Johnny McLaughlin, 2 and 1, and clubmate Peter Bush on the 19th. For the route, he was one under standard figures. Bush had the slender Brighton High lad 3 down at one time, but Allen pulled even at the 16th, halved the final two of regulation play with pars, then stuck an iron approach stiff to the pin for a "gimme" bird on the 19th.

Wing wasn't quite as spectacular. He was, however, under par in thumping Vince Pompa, the pride of the Park, 5 and 4, in the morning. He then played steady golf, about 4 over par, to beat the highly-regarded CCR club champ, George Trainor, with a par 4 on the 20th hole in the afternoon.

Cory Well Over Par

Cory wasn't up to the play that carried him to the title at Irondequoit last year. He was 5-to-6 over par in besting Jerry Liebel of Oak Hill, 1 up, in the morning. In the afternoon, after winning the first hole with a bird, Robinson slowly ground out the win.

Thaney's extra-hole verdict was a credit to the Oak Hiller. He was on the ropes after losing the 17th and 18th to Pat Keenan, John Carroll University student who plays out of Genesee. But Thaney pulled himself together to par the 19th and Keenan, after a great birdie on the 18th, took three from the edge to lose out. Mercier, a phlegmatic performer

Gene Robinson, who won this tournament in 1946 when he parlayed a fantastic short game with steel nerves, flashed some of his old-time form in defeating Cory. The match was all Robby's as the Durand golfer scored a convincing 4-3 win.

Chris Kling, member of Brigh-ton High's all-winning links team and one of the 18-year-old tourney survivors, upended Morreale with a red-hot putting streak. The score was 2 and 1.

Joining Robinson and Kling in the round of eight were Bert Wing, the steady-playing 1954 champion; the youngsters—Donny Allen, 18, CCR; Warren Simons, 18, Monroe, and Dean Tripp, 17, CCR; Bill Thaney and George Mercier of Oak Hill.

Robinson Faces Thaney

Quarterfinal matches will be played beginning at 9 o'clock this morning, with Robinson facing Thaney; Wing meeting Mercier, a surprise 4-handicapper who has been playing tournament golf for less than 4 years; Kling meeting Allen, and Simons tangling with Tripp. The 36-hole final round will be played tomorrow.

Yesterday's play was marked by close, exciting matches. Of the 24 matches in the championship flight six went extra holes, and an additional half dozen were decided on the 18th.

Longest was the 24-hole marathon between Marty Ruby, Genesee, and Mike Frontuto, Midvale. Ruby, a 47-year-old filling station operator, bested Frontuto on the 6th extra hole with a par 4. Ruby then had to tangle with young Tripp, who is playing in his first District championship. Tripp won out on the 18th when Ruby encountered bunkers on the final two holes. Ruby played a total of 42 holes for the day.

Most dramatic finish probably was Robinson's morning tussle, when he watched Bruce Koch of Oak Hill stroke in a 20-footer for a bird to even the match at the 18th. Robinson in turn holed a 12-foot birdie for his win on the 19th.

Mrs. Trainor Wins with 79

Mrs. George Trainor, 13 times city women's golf champion, fired a 79, 5 over par, to win the Women's Rochester District Golf Assn. one-day tournament at Country Club of Rochester yesterday.

Mrs. Trainor shot nines of 41-38 over the par 37-37 course.

Her closest competitor, playing in the same threesome, was her CCR clubmate, Mrs. William Warren. The latter was even with Mrs. Trainor through 14 holes, but couldn't keep up the pace. She finished with 41-42—83.

Three other women cracked 90. Mrs. Maurice Forman of Irondequoit shot 87, and Ann Hildreth, Locust Hill, and Mrs. Butler Cox, CCR, posted 88s. Mrs. Trainor's card:

Mrs. Trainor Wins at CCR

Mrs. George Trainor, District champion fired a solid 76 and defeated Mrs. Douglas Coupe, 5 and 4, to win the Country Club of Rochester's women's club championship yesterday. Mrs. Trainor's nines were 37-39, two over women's par.

Mrs. V. S. Bennett captured the first flight by defeating Mrs. H. Tripp, 2 and 1.

The second flight went to Mrs. J. C. DeLaCour, a 2-and-1 winner over Mrs. M. Cleveland.

Mrs. Trainor's best round at the CCR is 72. She shares the amateur course record with Ruth Woodward.

Urzetta Sets Course Record

Urzetta-Ferentz Capture Pro Best Ball Tourney

Sam Urzetta of the Country Club of Rochester and Steve Ferentz of Ontario Country Club won the George McLean Memorial pro-pro best-ball golf tournament at University golf course yesterday. They tied with Newman golf course's Lew Odesso and Augie Nordone of Lafayette Country Club, Jamesville, over the regulation 18-hole route. Each team had 65.

In a tie-breaking extra hole Urzetta scored a birdie three for the win. He narrowly missed an eagle on the extra hole as his drive landed beyond the traps and he chipped to within inches of the cup.

Urzetta also set a new University course record with a score on his own ball of 67. The previous record of 68 had been held by Dr. Fred Edmonds of Auburn. In addition, Urzetta won the driving contest with a distance of 276 yards.

The winners received the top money prize of $200 per team. Second place money of $150 went to Odesso and Nordone. Twenty-seven teams participated in the meet.

The scores:

65—Sam Urzetta, Country Club of Rochester, and Steve Ferentz, Ontario Country Club; Lew Adesso, Newman golf course, and Augie Nordone, LaFayette Country Club, Jamesville.

71—Bucky Hewitt, Green Lakes Country Club, Syracuse, and Bob Klink, Auburn Country Club; Joe Zeilic, University golf course, and Danny Jones, Shepard Hills Country Club, Waverly; Alex Greer, Brookfield Country Club, Clarence, and Alex Leiper, Westwood Country Club, Williamsville.

73—Mike Bello, Tecumseh golf course, Jamesville, and Grant Newlove, Syracuse Yacht and Country Club; Emmett Kelly, Green Lakes State Park golf course, Syracuse, and Dick Howell, Green Lakes; Bill Smith, Orchard Park Country Club, and Steve Piech, Lackawanna; Don Drier, Bartlett Country Club, Olean, and Bob Stenzel, Rochester.

74—Ray Feller, Hornell Country Club, and Jim Commisso, Canandaigua Country Club; Carmen Ceo, Seneca Falls Country Club, and Bill McCure, McConnellsville golf course. 75—Steve Savel, Western Turnpike golf course, and John Gaucas, Van Schaick Island Country Club, Schenectady; Jim Entwistle, Syracuse, and Ralph Haas, Transit Valley Country Club, East Amherst; Frank Socash, Elmira Country Club, and Orville Parsons, Sarasota.

77—Bill Dalgety, Willowbrook golf course, Cortland, and Bill O'Leary, Bellevue Country Club, Syracuse. No card—Manny Nordone Sr. and Frank Murray.

Urzetta's 65 Sets Cornell Golf Mark

C Ithaca, Aug. 21 (AP)—Sam Urzetta of the Country Club of Rochester, today holds a new course record for the Cornell University course—a five-under-par 67.

The former National Amateur champion fired that round as he and Steven Ferentz of Ontario Country Club won the annual George McLean pro-golf tournament yesterday.

The match had to go to an extra hole. Lew Adesso of Newman Country Club, Ithaca, and Augie Nordone of Lafayette Country Club, Syracuse, tied the Urzetta-Ferentz team at 65 after 18 holes in the best-ball competition.

Urzetta, Ferentz Shoot 65 for Ithaca Bestball; Sam's 67 Sets Record

Special to The Democrat and Chronicle

ITHACA, Aug. 20—Sammy Urzetta, Country Club of Rochester associate pro, and Steve Ferentz, head pro at Ontario Golf Club, yesterday fired a torrid 7-under-par 65 to win the George McLean Memorial bestball tourney at Ithaca Country Club. At the same time, Urzetta set the course record with a score of 67.

Highlight of the round was an eagle deuce by Urzetta on the 335-yard ninth hole. Sam drove well and used a 9-iron to hole his second shot. Urzetta had fired seven straight pars before scoring a birdie on the 8th. The ensuing eagle gave him a 33 on the par 36 front nine.

On the incoming side, Sam birdied the two par 5s and parred the rest. Ferentz, a sharp iron player, came in with birdie deuces on the 2 par-3 holes of the back nine.

As it was, the bestball title wasn't decided until a playoff was held. And Urzetta decided it there, but good. He almost duplicated his feat of the ninth hole, for he punched his 9-iron second to within an inch of the cup on the playoff hole and made a birdie 3. The playoff victims were veteran Augie Nordone of Syracuse and Lou Odessa of Ithaca.

Junior Golfers Slate Pairings

Don Allen, 18, of Country Club of Rochester, is expected to provide the chief opposition for Warren Simmons, Canandaigua who plays at Monroe Golf Club, in the Rochester District Golf Assn. Junior Championship tournament starting Monday at Ridgemont. Simmons has won the junior title the last two years, and this year won the District Senior title as well.

The Junior is for golfers 15 to 18, and the Sub-Junior for those under 15. Pairings:

LEWISTON, Aug. 28 — Mrs. Wayne Rutter, Park Club of Buffalo, defeated Miss Janet MacLeod, Country Club of Buffalo on the first extra hole today at Niagara Falls Country Club to win the final event on the Women's Golf Assn. of Western New York Schedule.

Mrs. Rutter, the Western New York and Buffalo District champion, scored on a par on the extra hole while Miss MacLeod three-putted for a bogey. They tied with 83's to force the playoff. Mrs. Rutter has nines of 43 and 40 and Miss MacLeod fired 42 and 41.

Mrs. Douglass Coupe, Country Club of Rochester, won Class A low net with 87-12—75. Mrs. Maurice Forman, Irondequoit of Rochester, was next with 87-11—76, followed by Mrs. Herbert Sheppard, Cazenovia, 90-14—76, and Mrs. Joseph Zimmerman, Park, 87-11—76.

Mrs. Harlow Webber, Rochester's Brook-Lea, won Class B low gross with 49-42—91. Miss Claire Keating, Buffalo South Shore, took low net with 92-20—72.

Mrs. Carl Silverstein, Delaware, 54-47—101, won Class C low gross. Mrs. Walter Schlitzer, Buffalo Golf Club, won low net with 106-25—80.

Junior Events Programmed Next Saturday At Country Club's 2-Day Horse Show

JUNIOR HORSEMANSHIP will be emphasized in several of the 8 classes Saturday when a two-day Horse Show opens at the Country Club of Rochester. A lead line class for children under eight will get the show under way. Next will come novice horsemanship, novice riding over jumps, children's jumpers, children's hunter hacks and a class in bareback horsemanship.

The junior show will precede the main Horse Show to be held Sunday in the club ring. This will be the 18th annual club-sponsored horse show and as the show this year is accredited by the American Horse Show Association, it is expected to be more widely attended than ever.

The Sunday show promises a full day of competitive events. A class of green working hunters will open the program and early that day will be children's class for hunter hacks and hunters. To the winner of this event will go the Little Irish Perpetual Memorial Trophy donated by Toddy Messler.

Other classes will include jumpers ridden by amateurs; ladies' hunters; horsemanship for those under 18; open jumpers; working hunters with riders in hunting attire; American Horse Shows Association medal class, for association members under 18; open working hunters; working hunter hacks; horsemanship for riders under 12 (to receive the James C. Forman Challenge Trophy), working hunters ridden by amateurs; knock down and out, and the working hunter stake.

At the close of the show Sunday will come announcement of the jumper champion, the equitation champion and the working hunter champion, each to be determined on points accumulated during the show.

THEY WILL COMPETE FOR HONORS — Three young women who will take part in the 18th annual horse show at the Country Club of Rochester this

Young Riders Compete In First Day of Show

Summaries on Page 4B

A 17-year-old Brighton High School senior galloped off with the lion's share of the prizes yesterday at the first day of the 18th annual horse show of the Country Club of Rochester.

Marilyn J. Critchely, of 11 Chelmsford Rd., riding a chestnut gelding named Scarlet Red, took blue ribbons in the jumping and pleasure horses classes. She also collected a second-place prize in a novice horsemanship class, and a fourth-place ribbon in the bareback riding class.

Parents and friends crowded around the ring to watch the youngsters, aged 18 and under, compete in eight classes. Three deputies, appropriately mounted on palominos from Sheriff Al Skinner's stable, directed the flow of traffic and pedestrians at the Country Club.

A special award for good sportsmanship was presented to spectator Betsy Swan, 129 Brookside Dr., Brighton, who was barred from competition on doctor's orders. Betsy, 15, fell from her horse Tuesday while rehearsing for the show and suffered a concussion.

"Betsy has been one of our hardest workers at the Club," said Rufus Wesson, chairman of the show. "She helped get things ready for the horse show and we feel that her good sportsmanship should be recognized."

Dressed in the customary jodhurs, riding boots, jackets and hunting caps, the young riders put their horses through their paces, under the direction of show judge Frank D. Hawkins of Belford, N.Y.

Two first prizes in the novice horsemanship classes were won by 12-year-old Donna Kaufman of 2124 Monroe Ave., astride her mare Bronze. Donna, who has been riding "off and on" ever since she was 3 years old, also was awarded a third-place ribbon in the novice jumping class.

Other first place winners were Stephen Lines, on Tarbaby, in the lead line class open to children 8 years old and under; David Forman on Bright Lad, in the children's jumping class; Carolyn Carson on Lucky Juda in the children's hunter hacks class; and Saralyn Clark on Perky in the bareback class.

Today's events will feature jumping and hunter classes for both youngsters and adults.

Marcia A. Christ Is Bride Of William R. Heffron

A GOWN of white silk taffeta trimmed at the portrait neckline with chantilly lace and sequins, was worn by Miss Marcia Anne Christ for her marriage yesterday to William Richard Heffron.

Palms and white flowers formed the setting for the 11 o'clock ceremony which was performed in St. James Church by the Rev. Francis M. Feeney. A reception followed at Monroe Golf Club.

The former Miss Christ is the daughter of Mrs. George M. Christ of Hurstbourne Road, and the late Mr. Christ. Her father was golf pro for many years at the Country Club of Rochester. Mr. Heffron is the son of William S. Heffron of Rowley Street, and Mrs. Ruth Leonard of Naples.

With her gown, which was fashioned with a flared skirt and cathedral train, the bride wore her sister's chapel-length veil of chantilly lace. She carried stephanotis and a white orchid on a prayerbook.

Miss Joan Patricia Christ was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Donald Tully, also a sister of the bride, and Mrs. George Christ, sister-in-law. They were gowned alike in peacock blue taffeta and wore matching feather caps. They carried peacock velvet muffs trimmed with sweetheart roses.

John Gilmore was best man. Ushers were Leo Cleary, Donald Tully, Richard Spong and Raymond Cleary.

Mr. and Mrs. Heffron will live at 180 Hurstbourne Rd.

THEY REVERED BETTY IN BOSTON

Girl, 15, Tops Club Horse Show

A 15-year-old Pittsford girl with plenty of "horse sense" rode off with Rochester Country Club's equitation championship yesterday, astride a mount which later won for his mistress the coveted working hunter championship.

Toddy Messler, riding Timber's Last, won the top horsemanship award. The daughter of Mrs. Jane A. Messler, she received a challenge trophy awarded in memory of the late DeWitt B. Macomber, for many years joint master of the club's drag hunt.

Stirlin Harris, riding Peter Piper, was named reserve champion. First and second place winners in six different classes competed for the championship.

Timber's Last, a five-year-old bay gelding, edged out Magic Sailor for the working hunter championship. Magic Sailor, owned by Kent Vater and ridden by Bob Goetz, was named reserve champion.

A five-year-old gray gelding—Irish Trip—won the jumper championship with Larry Carney riding. Black Hawk, a black gelding owned by San Joy Farms and ridden by Charles Graham, won the reserve championship.

A total of 103 horses, entered in an average of four events each, were put through their paces during the two-day show which closed yesterday. It was sponsored by the club.

Among those viewing yesterday's contest was Capt. Bertalan DeNemethy, coach of the U.S. Olympic equestrian team. The one-time Hungarian cavalry officer presented the first prize award to James Forman of Buffalo, whose mount, Bright Lad, took first place in the working hunter's class.

Prior to taking top equitation honors, Miss Messler won the horsemanship challenge trophy for the second straight year. The trophy becomes the property of the horseman winning it three consecutive times. Donating the trophy is James C. Forman, who retired the challenge trophy donated in former years by Miss Messler's mother.

A summary of other winners in yesterday's events follows.

Trainer, Goodrich Tie in Senior Golf

By HANS TANNER

George Trainer of the Country Club of Rochester and Cliff Goodrich of Brook-Lea each fired a 2-under-par 71 yesterday to lead a field of 61 in the annual Rochester District Golf Assn. Senior Championship at Brook-Lea.

The tournament was open to golfers 40 years of age or older.

Trainor started out by bogeying two of the first three holes. He birdied the par-5 seventh to turn in 37. Coming back, he birdied the 10th, 12th, 15th and 16th before bogeying the short 18th.

After being 1-over on the fourth tee, Goodrich canned birds on the fifth and seventh to make a 1-under 35 at the turn. Birds on the 10th and 16th more than off-set a bogey on the 11th.

Trailing Trainor and Goodrich in the gross department were Bill Cory of Lake Shore and Burt Kling of Oak Hill with 73s, and Jack Tucker of Lake Shore and Harold Christ of Genesee with 75s. All competed in Class D—the 40-49 age bracket.

In Class C (50-59), George Calhoun of Ridgemont had the best scratch score—79. Canandaigue's Noble Miller took low gross in Class B (60-69) with a 77.

Fred Grover of Midvale finished with 77 despite a horrendous 6-7 start. . . . Kling's back nine included four birdies,

THE HAGEN STORY

I Met Golf When Five

(One of the most colorful figures in North America's "Golden Age" of sports was the golfer Walter Hagen. Now, with the aid of Margaret Seaton Heck, he has written his amazing life story. Because "the Halg" was so well known, and so popular, through his exhibition visits at Colwood and Uplands in this area, The Times take pleasure in presenting the new biography in serialized form, starting today.)

THE WALTER HAGEN STORY

"By "The Halg" Himself

As Told to Margaret Seaton Heck

Chapter I

Golf and I met when I was five years old, in the little town of Brighton, New York. A Scotsman named Sandy, professional at the Country Club of Rochester, first put a club into my hands and let me knock a ball around in our living room.

record, most of them are cor-

'I'll Ask You'

One day, with forced non-chalance, I said, "It's a fine evening, Mr. Christy, and all the members are in. I'll just take you on for nine holes."

His answer set me back on my heels. His eyes covered me slowly for a few seconds, then he said, "Young man, when I want to play golf, I'll ask you." Then he turned and walked away.

Was my face red! What a lesson he taught me. I never forgot that. Afterwards when I wanted to play with him I was always careful to ask politely, "Would you play a few holes with me, Mr. Christy, and give me some pointers on my game?"

I could beat him and he knew it, too. But he had carried that incident off big. He made himself and his position important and dignified. Win or lose, he let me know he was still the pro, the big guy. I was just a kid and I could beat him, but he still looked and acted the role of the champion on that course.

In later years I took some clobbering defeats and wore many a championship crown, yet it was the lesson he taught me that kept me in the groove through all walks of life.

MONDAY—How Hagen assembled his first set of clubs and how a famous lost club was found.

Through the fabulous years that were to follow I played golf in almost every country on the globe. Golf earned me a million dollars which I enjoyed spending. Golf brought me into contact with more than a million people. Golf made my every move and statement a news headline anywhere I chanced to be.

Hagen

Sports writers have written ten thousands of words and figures about the money I made playing golf. For the record, most of them are correct. I got the highest fee ever paid a golfer in those days in England, when I won a 72-hole match over Abe Mitchell for a stake of 500 pounds (then $2,500) at Wentworth and St. George's Hill in 1926. Just two years later I received the same high fee and took the worst trimming of my career from Archie Compston at Moor Park, 18 up and 17 to play.

For that much publicized match with Bobby Jones in Florida in 1926 I received $7,600 and that was the highest take ever won by a golfer for a 72-hole match in America. And I gave Bobby the most humiliating defeat of his golfing life.

Leaves School

Late in the spring when I was 12 years old, I was in the seventh grade and sitting looking out the window, feeling the nice warm air and the sunshine on my face. I could see the golfers out on the course at the Country Club of Rochester. Suddenly I could not take it any longer. When Mrs. Cullen, the teacher, was not looking I jumped out the window. I never went back to school regularly again.

Throughout that summer I spent every weekday caddying, and on Sundays I played baseball. I was a good caddie, conscientious about my job, and soon members of the Thistle Club asked me to caddie for them.

This was a big step up for me. The Thistle Club, composed of charter members of the club which had preceded the Country Club of Rochester, was a sort of inner group whose word carried a lot of weight. I picked up a lot of pointers on the game and played around on my own cow pasture course when I had the free time.

I continued to caddie at the Country Club of Rochester through the summer and the Thistle Club members fixed it so I could play the club course. By the time I was 15, Andrew Christy, the club pro, needed an assistant and it had to be me.

I was playing the Country Club of Rochester course with Mr. Christy when I broke 80. He played with me quite often when we were through work in the pro shop at the end of the day. But we played with each other, not against. In my own mind, though, I always played him a match on the q.t.

Liked the Money

The truth is I went into the game in the beginning for money—10 cents an hour plus a nickel tip which members of the Country Club of Rochester, New York, paid their novice caddie, Walter, back in 1900.

I learned quickly, because I spent every free hour after school caddying, and I sure liked having that money I made.

While I was caddying I thought I might as well learn to play golf. Walter Will could drive farther than any other player at the club so it was his swing that I copied. Because caddies were not allowed to play the club course I fashioned my own course on a nearby cow pasture.

I learned quickly how to beg golf clubs from members, too. When I'd take the members' bags to the door of the locker room I could see some of their old clubs growing dusty in the lockers. When I was eight I got up enough nerve to ask Mr. John Palmer for one. He gave me two, a midiron and a spoon.

NO HALLOWEEN PARTY

of Rochester, but the club's junior subscription dance will

Named Club Professional at 19

There was one bright spot in that tournament for me. I finished one stroke ahead of Alex Smith, the grand old Scotsman who had won the National Open in 1906 with a score of 295 for 72 holes, breaking 300 for the first time in the history of golf in the United States. He'd won again in 1910.

Andrew Christy was leaving the Country Club of Rochester to accept the head pro job at the Equinox Club in Manchester, Vermont. Beekman Little, chairman of the greens committee and Thistle Club member, had the final decision on who would take over and he made my appointment definite.

So in 1912 I became pro and I asked George Christ, my former fellow caddie and baseball pal, to be my assistant. I gave my dad a job as greens-keeper, too. Here I was—19 years old, a real pro with an assistant, a salary of approximately $1,200 for eight months of the year and a chance to make extra cash by giving lessons at two dollars an hour.

THE HAGEN STORY

I Was Cocky In $10 Shoes

One of the most colorful figures in the world of golf was Walter Hagen, now, with the aid of Margaret Section Heck he has written his amazing life story. Because of world-wide popularity and the fact that he played in the city, the Times takes pleasure in presenting the Hag's biography.

CHAPTER IV

My bosses at the Country Club of Rochester thought I was out beyond my depth when I asked for a few days off to play in the United States Open at Brookline in September of 1913. But they gave me permission to go.

I guess I was pretty cocky expecting to get anywhere in competition with the "big boys" of golf. And there were plenty of them, both foreign and American—for the British veterans, Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, chose that particular year to make their invasion. I figured if I were ever going to make a name for myself I'd better be getting started. After all, I was 20 years old.

Actually when I sent in my entry that summer I believe I was more concerned about the clothes I planned to wear than I was about the kind of game I'd have to play. The outfit had cost me plenty of money.

$10 for the shoes alone! But I had managed to copy Tom Anderson's get-up as closely as it could be done.

My pure silk striped shirt sported as many bright colors as Tom's and I had that red bandanna knotted so casually around my neck. My white buckskin shoes with thick red rubber soles were laced with the widest white laces I had been able to find. And the white flannels . . . Well, I had the cuffs turned up just once—perfect for the well-dressed golfer or any active sportsman.

Nine years later, when I returned to Florida after winning my first British Open, I had another experience with white flannels that was a far cry from that first pair I worked so hard to get. For in 1922 I was getting into the big money. I was giving lessons, playing maybe two exhibitions a day and a round each afternoon with a few friends. In Florida that winter I had made friends with a number of millionaires—Mr. Replogle, the steel magnate; Mr. Drake, the hotel tycoon; Mr. Henry Flagler, famous for the building and promotion of Florida real estate.

Savings Banks Aided By Law, Says Banker

Review of state banking laws to correct alleged unfair advantages of savings over commercial banks was urged last night by commercial bank members of Group 2 of the New York State Bankers Assn.

About 260 commercial bankers from six area counties, meeting at the Country Club of Rochester, heard Arthur T. Roth, president of the Franklin National Bank of Franklin Square, L.I., present and explain statements he gave Sept. 28 before a joint legislative committee to revise the state banking law.

Beginning with the premise that commercial banks are indispensable in our economy, Roth explained that commercial banks render all services offered by savings banks.

He added that savings banks, "because of tax and reserve advantages, have been siphoning deposits away from commercial banks to the harm of the commercial banks and the state's economy."

Roth said he suggested to the joint legislative committee that a program of equal taxation of commercial and savings banks was needed.

"The long-range solution to the problem of savings banks," he said, "is the consolidation of savings banks into combined commercial and savingsbanks." He noted that only 17 states now have savings banks and that New York State has next to the most.

In a formal resolution, the bankers expressed support of Roth's views as substantially representative of their own.

A second resolution urged the joint legislative committee to request the Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to report their separate views on the existing banking situation in New York State.

Roth stated that four billion dollars in savings deposits in New York State is invested outside the state by savings banks and charged that savings banks are neglecting local customer needs for more profitable out-of-state ventures.

Earlier in the day, about 80 members heard a panel discussion on "Financing of Industry and Commerce on a Long-term Basis." The panel, moderated by Sanford Bush, vice president of the Security Trust Co., and Walter Loebmann, vice president of the Central Trust Co.

Group two of the banking association includes all commercial banks in Monroe, Livingston, Wayne, Ontario, Seneca and Yates counties.

Carl Gath of Monroe Named Head of RDGA; Tourney Dates Slated

By HANS TANNER

Carl Gath of Monroe Golf Club was elected president of the Rochester District Golf Assn. for 1957 last night at the Country Club of Rochester at the group's annual fall dinner meeting.

Gath replaces Verne Leonard as president of the district.

Other officers elected were: George Adams, Brook-Lea, first vice president; Sid Levinson, Irondequoit, second vice president; Ed Thaney, Ridgemont, treasurer; Charlie Jack Jr., Monroe, secretary; Charlie Resler, Oak Hill, tournament chairman, and Don McConville, CCR, assistant tournament chairman. McConville is the only newcomer to the slate of officers, although the others held different positions in 1956.

Also announced last night was a tentative tournament schedule for next season. As in the past, the RDGA will sponsor five events—two bestball tourneys, the RDGA Championship, the Junior and the Senior. The first bestball tournament is slated for May 25 at Monroe, and the other for July 18 at Ridgemont. Dates for the Championship have been tentatively set for Aug. 8-11, and the site will be Brook-Lea.

The Senior was shifted back to an August date after a 1-year trial in September. There were 47 less entries in the 1956 event than there were in 1955. No caddies was given as the chief reason for the decline in interest.

Only other major business transacted last night saw the district officers and club representatives vote to lower the age of eligibility for the Junior from 18 to 17. This was to keep in line with other junior golf events in the state and country.

The caddie situation was the subject of much discussion, with a committee finally being formed to study the possibility of approaching the New York State Labor Board on lowering the minimum age of caddies from 14 to 12.

TEE TALK—Sammy Urzetta, associate pro at the CCR, was kept busy handing out cigars. Sammy became a proud papa (for the second time) Tuesday afternoon when his wife, Mary Ellen, presented him an 8-pound, 7-ounce baby boy. They'll name the baby Joseph, after Sammy's late brother. Mary Ellen and the baby are doing fine in Highland Hospital, while Sam is keeping 3-year-old Helen Mary under control at home. Urzetta's first comment after seeing the baby, according to Frank Comisso, was, "It's got big hands."

Armand Lannutti of Durand will take over the tournament chairman duties for the Western New York Professional Golfer's Assn. The position was left vacant when Babe Urzetta, long-time assistant at Irondequoit, signed to become head pro at Drumlins in Syracuse . . . Warren Simmons, of Canandaigua and Monroe, motored in from Syracuse University to attend the dinner. He was the winner, or shared the victory in three of the five District tournaments in 1956. Warren copped the Championship and the Junior, and paired with Don Allen of the CCR to walk off with one of the two bestball affairs.

Even though the field for the Senior declined, the total number of entries in the RDGA events increased from 655 in 1955 to 677 in 1956. The bestball tournaments accounted for the entire increase . . . Pros in attendance last night were Joe LaMachia of Locust Hill, Frank Comisso of Irondequoit, Charlie Bemish and Urzetta of

325 Night Spots Licensed To Remain Open All Night

Rochester's "goodby" to 1956 will be loud, happy and strikingly similar to the "hello" that greeted the infant year 12 months ago.

For the most part, New Years Eve parties to welcome 1957 and bid farwell to 1956 will generate merriment at the same clubs, hotels, restaurants and homes.

The noisemakers will be just as numerous and just as raucous. The hats will be the same bright colors, look just as silly and come apart before the celebration is over.

Few Price Changes

Refreshments will be available in an ample flow, and the dance floors, if early reservations are an indication, will be just as crowded. Above the din, the orchestra won't sound much different.

Except for a few minor increases, prices will stay about the same. Tickets which include hats, noisemakers, dinner or breakfast, federal tax and in some cases cocktails, range from $5 to $16 a couple. Thereafter thirst and pocketbook capacity are the determining cost factor.

The big difference: Most of the party-goers will be one year older, if not wiser.

There will be about 325 Monroe County establishments, approximately the same number as a year ago, legally entitled, on payment of a $10 fee, to stay open all night. But most of the celebrators will probably quit the party before the permits expire.

Those who want to begin a big evening with theatrical entertainment will have a wide choice. In addition to the movies, there will be the traditional University of Pennsylvania Mask and Wig show, "Ring Around Rosie," at the Eastman Theater; a Broadway musical, "Plain and Fancy," at the Auditorium; and a special repeat of "The Solid Gold Cadillac" by the Community Players.

The Genesee Valley Club show for about 300 teen-agers.

again will be virtually in a class by itself with no hats or noisy horns. The club expects 300 for cocktails, dinner, dancing and a 2 a.m. snack.

The University Club is planning on 400 for dancing and noise-making. The Rochester Club will have "open house" for an expected 600 members and guests, with two bands and featured singers.

Most hotel bars and restaurants, along with many restaurants, will stick to an "open house" policy, distributing festive aids for the midnight climax, but adding no special music or entertainment. Knights of Pythias lodges will have private parties at the Seneca and Sheraton.

The Treadway Inn will try its first regular New Years Eve party, with an orchestra and the standard accouterments for 125 couples. A country-style breakfast will be served early in 1957.

Night Spots Ready

Other area night spots are planning an all-out welcome for the new year: floor shows, full-course meals, balloons and other fun-promoting paraphernalia.

Area country clubs have orchestra music, decorations, noisemakers, hats and early breakfast lined up for the big night. The Country Club of Rochester expects 250, Oak Hill 300, Irondequoit 200, Locust Hill 250 and Brook-Lea 250.

Soft drinks will flow at two parties for the younger set. The Demolay - operated Collegiate Club will furnish dance music, refreshments and souvenirs for an anticipated 500 couples at the Masonic Temple. The Barn will have an orchestra and floor show for about 300 teen-agers.
